Doomed?

Hoping that some hospital or individual will give aid that might save his two-and-one-half-year-old son, Harold Holt, jr., doomed to die soon from a malignant internal growth, Harold Holt, sr., 26, of Monongahela, Pa., has sent out an appeal for help. If aid is impossible, the father states, he wants the child examined after death to determine what caused the growth and if anything can be done to prevent the same occurrence in other children.

MUSIC CAMPAIGN OFF WITH RUSH

200 Renewals Received First Four Hours—Officials See Goal of 1,000 Sure.

The membership campaign of the Civic Music association got underway today, and wasted no time in getting into high gear.

Within four hours after headquarters offices in the Ohio Fuel Gas company were opened, 200 renewals of memberships had been received—an increase of 150 over the same length of time last year.

Officials of the campaign saw in the heavy early response an indication that this week's campaign will easily reach the goal of 1,000 and perhaps pass it. Membership this year was slightly under 800.

Enthusiasm mounted rapidly this morning at headquarters as many renewals came in unsolicited. In many cases they were accompanied by letters expressing appreciation of the past season's program.

Mrs. Paul Cropper, general chairman, said that workers are concentrating on renewals the first half of the week, and that up until Wednesday night, last year's members would be given preference. After Wednesday, how-

BOARD NAMES NEW HEAD OF PARK SYSTEM

Frank R. Burton, 27-Year-Old Greenhouse Employe, to Succeed Rahm.

TAKES POST NEXT MONTH

Commission Looks Forward to Long Range Expansion and Improvement Program.

Frank R. Burton, 27-year-old greenhouse employe today had been selected by the Mansfield board of park commissioners to succeed Jacob Rahm, whose provisional appointment as superintendent of the city parks system expires April 1. The position pays $1,800 a year.

The appointment was announced today by H. G. Brunner, chairman of the board, who said that Burton had been selected over 10 other applicants at a special meeting of the commission Sunday afternoon.

Begins as Laborer.

The new superintendent who lives in Springfield township will be employed temporarily as a laborer in the parks department beginning March 20, Brunner said.

He will assume the superintendency of the parks as soon as he has established his residence in the city, which means that he will take over the position after he has lived 20 days in any precinct, it was explained.

"The commission is looking forward to a long range program of park expansion and improvement and for that reason has selected a young man to the position," commission members said.

Experienced In Landscaping.

They pointed out that Burton also had been named because of his experience in landscaping.

Burton, who is married, lives on Park avenue west road. He has been employed by the Stuhldreher Floral company for the past 13 years and for five years has been foreman of the greenhouse.

Rahm, his predecessor, was appointed by Mayor Claude M. Hunter when he took office Jan. 1, 1938.

With the inauguration of the commission plan of park supervision here Jan. 1, 1939, the new board of commissioners gave Rahm a 90-day provisional appointment. Rahm had also served as superintendent of parks under former Mayor Charles M. Lantz.

FEARS FLOODS

New England Menaced Again on Heels of Record Snow.

BOSTON —(AP)— New England prepared to meet a serious flood threat today in the wake of its worst March snowstorm in 51 years, a storm which claimed 18 lives and slowed transportation almost to a standstill for a time.

One New Hampshire weather observer said the foot to two and a half feet of new snow made floods a "near certainty," and Massachusetts engineers agreed a "very serious situation" exists.

Most streams were within normal levels, but flood patrols reported frequently on the water levels in Massachusetts rivers and tributaries as authorities expressed fear of a sudden thaw or sudden rain.

Ex-Premier Tiso

President Hacha

Pictured here are two of the principals in the current Central European crisis, which saw the dissolution today of Czechoslovakia as a nation. Ex-President Tiso, Slovak nationalist leader, who was ousted by President Hacha, today became the head of the new Slovak state, which proclaimed its independence today, backed by a pledge from Adolf Hitler that he stood ready to send troops if the Czechs refused to agree to separation. The Czech government agreed, after its cabinet resigned. The map at the bottom shows how Czechoslovakia looked before the dissolution.

Critical 'Britisher' Jolts Foremen, Causes Protests

Club Members Aroused By Speaker Until They Find Out They're Being Kidded, and By An Expert, Too.

More than 200 members and "ladies' night" guests of the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club heard Americans and their favorite institutions "taken for a ride" last night in a talk at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, and some of the guests liked it none too well.

That is, they didn't like it until they learned they were being kidded by an expert—Art Briese, noted humorist, who masqueraded as a critical and impolite English*

With the lecture that has made him known throughout the country, Briese "panned" the New Deal, the American Legion, lawyers, bankers and Uncle Sam himself until his audience began to wonder if someone hadn't done an act of treason by inviting the indiscreet "Britisher" to talk to a loyal American audience.

Brings Up War.

"You Americans are always in a hurry, but you appeared in no great rush in 1914 when Europe needed you in the war, did you?" he asked. "You waited until we had the Germans groggy, then you came over to get in on the kill. Now you fuss about Britain's war debt. I contend we owe you nothing and that we'll never pay."

That was the cue for something

Hopkins' Resignation Message Charges Job Division Made 'Political Football.'

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Carl A. Hopkins of Millersburg resigned today from the bureau of unemployment compensation as a result, Administrator H. C. Atkinson said, of a news release which said Hopkins had been retained as assistant administrator.

Hopkins in a letter to Atkinson asserted, however, that he took the action because of "turmoil" in the bureau and "utter disregard for civil service principles."

The resignation is effective April 1.

Atkinson said he previously had asked Hopkins to remain temporarily with the bureau after its recent reorganization by the legislature at a salary of $3,600 a year. The administrator added in a statement:

"Through a publicity release issued (last Friday) from this department upon his (Hopkins') authority during my absence it was stated that he had been retained as the assistant administrator and by direct comment to interviewers the implication was left that he was being paid at the rate of $6,000.

"Due to this incident, I am not greatly concerned over Mr. Hopkins' comments with reference to 'turmoil'."

Attendance at Institute Soars, Full House Expected for Finale

With interest steadily increasing each week, sponsors of the Mansfield Institute of International Understanding today looked forward to a capacity audience when the second series of lectures comes to a close next Monday night with Louis Bromfield, Mansfield author, as the speaker.

Since the lectures got under way Feb. 20, the attendance has mounted each week, reaching a climax last evening when a crowd estimated at 1,000 was on hand to hear Dr. No-Yong Park of Chicago, Chinese author and lecturer.

Sponsored by the Mansfield University and Rotary clubs, the first talk attracted an audience of 600. On each of the three following Mondays the attendance has increased.

Last night, Dr. Park described the Sino-Japanese war as a "test of power between the democracies and totalitarian states of the world in their battle for supremacy," pointing out that United States holds the key to the outcome.

He contended that if this country halted the sale of finished war materials to Japan and Japanese imports were boycotted, the Jap war machine would collapse in 24 hours.

Spring Display Days Near, Will Feature Unique Contest

Store display windows will bloom like gardens with a riot of colors the last four days of the week when the annual Spring Display Days are sponsored by the Retail Merchants Association.

The event, which opens Thursday and runs through Sunday, will bring to store windows the fashions and fads of spring merchandise, in all lines from refrigerators and lawnmowers to ready-to-wear for adults and children.

Forty-two stores are taking part in their semi-annual event which introduces the newest merchandise to shoppers of Mansfield and vicinity.

In conjunction with Display Days, there will be a window title contest this year, with $80 in cash prizes. First prize will be $40, with $15 and $10 as second and third prizes; $5 as fourth prize and ten prizes of $1 each.

Every window, according to rules of the contest, except one, will have something in it that will suggest a title—song, movie, show, book, or perhaps just a phrase. The entry blanks, which may be obtained from any of the participating stores, will contain a list of titles and the stunt is to fit the proper titles to the right window.

The one exception will be the "mystery window." Contestants will have to discover it and then give it an appropriate name. Judging the contest winner will be guided largely by correct answers, originality of title for the mystery window and neatness. Answers must be returned to any participating store before 5 p. m. on next Monday.

A list of firms participating in the event will be found on page 13 of today's News-Journal.

'BAD BOY,' 13, FLEES AFTER COURT HEARING

'WORST JUVENILE CASE'

Disappears Without Hat, Coat When He Asks Permission to Go to Rest Room.

A 13-year-old Mansfield youth who escaped from the county detention home late yesterday was enjoying an interlude of freedom today before he goes to the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster on a juvenile court order.

The boy, who Judge C. J. Anderson said was the "worst juvenile case" he has handled in months, ran from the detention home without coat or hat yesterday afternoon after he had been released to go to a rest room.

Fails to Return Home.

Police were notified immediately of his escape but no trace of him had been found at noon today. His parents told juvenile officers he had not returned home. The youth was released from the Lancaster industrial school last Dec. 23.

Major David Brown of the Salvation Army who is in charge of the home maintained at the Salvation Army, said he was not present when the youth escaped. Girl attendants let the boy out of the room where he was confined when he asked to be permitted to go to the rest room a short distance down the hall, Major Brown said.

The boy ran down the hall and out a door before the attendants could summon help, they said. The youth had been returned to the home a short time before by Ralph Carroll, juvenile officer, following a hearing in juvenile court.

The youth was one of four cited in juvenile court yesterday for the theft of $17 from a cash register at Berry's market at East Fourth and Elm streets Sunday night. He was ordered returned to Lancaster by Judge Anderson who continued the case of the youth's 16-year-old brother, implicated in the theft, until Friday.

Two other boys, 13 and 15 years old, who were with the brothers, were paroled to their parents as first offenders.

Judge Anderson said the youth he ordered to the industrial school admitted a number of thefts in recent years, including two automobiles, money, and a number of articles from parked cars. He has been in the industrial school twice before.

SENDS SOS CALL

Norwegian Ship in Distress 400 Miles Off Virginia.

CHATHAM, Mass. —(INS)— The Norwegian steamer Belnor flashed an SOS today, stating she is in distress in the Atlantic approximately 400 miles east of Norfolk, Va., according to a message intercepted by radiomarine's coastal station.

Wording of the message picked up here indicated that the Italian liner, Conte Di Savoia, had picked up the distress call but it was not immediately learned whether the Italian liner had changed position to aid the stricken ship.

"SS Belnor, Norwegian, position 3726 N, 6213 W, sent S.O.S. no particulars. SS Conte Di Savoia handling," the message said.

Giant Nazi Army Waits on Border To Enforce Edict

400,000 Ready For Invasion

(By International News Service)

BERLIN — Forty divisions of German troops, totalling more than 400,000 men, were given marching orders today as Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler took steps toward a military occupation of disintegrated Czechoslovakia.

Fourteen of the divisions were earmarked for the first occupational stage. The remainder will await orders pending developments at immediate Czech frontier points.

The marching orders followed a declaration of independence by Slovakia and a Hungarian ultimatum to Prague demanding that the right of self-determination be granted to Ruthenia (Carpatho-Ukraine).

Start March Tonight.

The general impression prevailed in informed quarters that the German army would enter Slovakia tonight after an ultimatum demanding Czech evacuation of the territory has been delivered.

(Prague dispatches reported the gradual withdrawal of Czech troops from Slovakia from noon onward.)

Thus it was under relentless Nazi hammer-blows, that Czechoslovakia fell to pieces today.

Slovakia itself, with a population of 2,500,000, having seceded from the Czechoslovak federation, will establish itself as an independent republic under the sponsorship of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler.

In Bratislava, capital of Slovakia, Dr. Joseph Tiso, former premier ousted from office by the Czechs because of his separatist demands, proclaimed Slovakian independence in a message to Adolf Hitler.

"The Czech yoke has been shaken off," his manifesto said.

He then asked Hitler to rush immediate Nazi aid to guarantee preservation of the new independent state against opposition and subversion.

Already, the German foreign of-

Summary of What Happened Today In European Crisis

(By United Press)

Adolf Hitler triumphed again as over-lord of Central Europe today when a Slovakia, independent of Czechoslovakia, was proclaimed with Nazi backing.

Developments:

BRATISLAVA — Secret session of Slovakian parliament proclaims independence with Ose Tiso, pro-Nazi and foe of the central government at Prague, as president.

BERLIN — German troops at frontier ready to move into four Czech cities.

BUDAPEST—Hungarian troops fight with Czechs, occupy three Czech frontier villages, in renewal of demand for annexation of Carpatho-Ukraine to Hungary.

PRAGUE—Cabinet of Premier Rudolf Beran resigns in compliance with German ultimatum. Division of republic into three states —Bohemia, Slovakia and Carpatho-Ukraine—with complete independence foreseen.

LONDON — Great Britain and France, still fearful of Italian move in Mediterranean, maintain "hand off" policy.

WARSAW — Poland reported strengthening troop concentrations on Czecho-Slovak frontier.

Slovaks Form New State, Guided By Nazis; Hungarian Troops Enter Ruthenia, Demand It Be Surrendered to Them.

BULLETIN

BRATISLAVA—(AP)—Forty persons were reported killed today in a battle between Czech troops and Carpatho-Ukrainians at Chust, Carpatho-Ukraine capital. The reports said a hotel occupied by the German consul had been surrounded by Czech forces.

(By Associated Press)

Czechoslovakia fell apart today under pressure from Nazi Germany.

The Prague government formally dissolved the federal state a few hours after Slovakia, with Adolf Hitler's support, withdrew from the republic created by World war treaties out of the old Austro-Hungarian empire.

Hungary sent an ultimatum demanding that all Czech troops get out of the disintegrated republic's third component part, the Carpatho-Ukraine region (Ruthenia), wedged between Hungary and Poland.

Hungary reported her troops already were 19 miles inside the Carpatho-Ukraine frontier and* that fighting had broken out while more troops, including 60,000 reserves, were being rushed to the border.

The Slovak parliament voted independence as reliable Berlin reports said 400,000 German troops were ready to march into Czechoslovakia if parliament failed to act.

The nation apparently was unable to withstand the blow of the Munich and Vienna accords which lopped off sections for Germany, Poland and Hungary.

That those three nations would gain further territory now at Czechoslovakia's expense was the forecast of a spokesman for Fascist Italy, Germany's axis partner.

Goes to See Hitler.

President Emil Hacha, accompanied by Foreign Minister Frantisek Chvalkovsky, left by train for Berlin to confer with the German chancellor—more than ever master of central Europe.

Before their departure informants close to the Czech government said Hitler had made four requests of Prague:

1. That it offer no obstruction to Slovak independence.

BUDAPEST: Hungarians Grab Out for Territory on Frontier

(By Associated Press)

BUDAPEST—Hungary today sent an ultimatum to the Prague government demanding the evacuation of Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) by all Czech troops.

The ultimatum demanded evacuation of the troops within 24 hours.

The action followed quickly a* report by the official Hungarian news agency that fighting occurred at several points on the Hungarian-Carpatho-Ukraine frontier between Hungarian and Czechoslovak troops.

The ultimatum was handed to the Czech minister in Budapest and demanded:

1. The immediate release of all Hungarian prisoners in Carpatho-Ukraine, the easternmost part of Czechoslovakia.

2. An immediate end to the "persecution" of Hungarians.

3. Weapons are to be given immediately to Hungarian "self-defense" formations in Carpatho-Ukraine.

As the ultimatum was delivered, Hungarian troop reinforcements, including 60,000 reservists, were speeding toward the Carpatho-Ukraine frontier.

Hungarian troops were officially acknowledged to have entered Carpatho-Ukraine and reliable sources said they had penetrated a distance of about 19 miles into Ruthenian territory this afternoon.

While the start of the evacua-

LONDON: 'Not Our Business' Stand Taken by Britain, France

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today that the breaking up of Czechoslovakia called for no action from Great Britain.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Great Britain and France, who helped Germany slice up Czechoslovakia at Munich last September, maintained a hands-off policy today at the prospect of further collapse of that little republic under German pressure.

Even should Nazi troops move* in to settle the quarrel between the Czechs and Slovaks, informed sources indicated British Prime Minister Chamberlain would not repeat the flying trips to Central Europe he made in September. Chamberlain will be 70 years old next Saturday.

"None of our business," was the tone of the surprisingly unanimous press in both London and Paris. "Purely an internal matter. We have had one war scare over the Czechs and that's enough."

Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax in a speech last night perhaps gave Britain's official slant when he declared some persons would have "this country a universal policeman, but governments with the lives of millions hanging on their decisions must give most anxious thought to the question of intervention."

On the matter of Britain's projected guarantee to Czechoslovak borders, as contained in an annex to the Munich accord, the pro-government Times of London concluded a 1,000-word editorial by finding Britain not obligated because Italy and Germany were not giving guarantees.

The French newspaper Excelsior found itself pained at "Czech negligence" in not letting Britain and France know a crisis was brewing.

Mine Union Demands Wage Boost, 30-Hour Work Week

PLAN SETS UP GUARANTEE ON WORK VOLUME

Conferences Open on 5-Cent Per Day Pay Hike; With Pay Vacations Sought.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The United Mine Workers union today demanded a 50-cent per day wage increase, a 30-hour week, and a guarantee of 200 working days per year for 320,000 miners employed in the Appalachian bituminous fields.

The mine workers' demands were made public as contract conferences with the Appalachian producers opened. The demands will be presented formally later today.

The present basic Appalachian agreement, which expires March 31, provides for a 35-hour week, with a basic daily wage of $6 in the north and $5.60 in the south. It includes no guarantee of working days per year but miners last year averaged 180 days.

The coal conference today between the United Mine Workers and employers forced delay until tonight of further peace negotiations between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. John L. Lewis, head of the latter, is also president of the UMWA.

Other mine union demands included a two-weeks annual vacation with pay for all men working in and around the soft coal mines.

Two-Year Contract.

The miners proposed that the new agreement be for a two-year period, expiring March 31, 1941.

These other incidental rate increases were asked by the union:

An increase of 15 cents a ton in combined cutting and loading rates, 13 cents of which would be added to existing rates for loaders and two cents to existing cutter rates.

An increase of 25 cents a ton in pick mining rates.

An increase of 20 per cent in yardage and dead work rates.

Double time pay for work on Sundays and holidays.

The demand for a guarantee of 200 days work per year provided that if the mines do not run this many days, that day rate and monthly rate men shall be paid their regular salary and tonnage men shall be paid at the rate of $6.50 for each day less than the guaranteed 200. The vacation clause provides the same rates of pay.

Discussing medical care and hospitalization in mining communities, the mine union policy statement said that "tragic inequality, inefficiency and dishonest practice in the rendition of medical care and hospitalization in mining communities require the consideration of the Appalachian joint conference."

The union also demanded an "equitable adjustment of house rents."

Predict Compton Won't Take Over O.S.U. Presidency

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Ohio State University's board of trustees were still looking for a president for the state's largest college today as observers predicted that Dr. Arthur H. Compton, University of Chicago physicist and Nobel prize winner, would not accept the job.

The board met with Dr. Compton, a native of Wooster, in Marion Sunday, but at their regular meeting yesterday denied offering the presidency to the Chicago physicist. The chances that Dr. Compton would be willing to leave his research work in Chicago appeared to be slim.

Harry A. Caton, chairman of the board, indicated yesterday that a special meeting of the board would be held before the next regular monthly meeting in April.

Motorists, driving to Shelby and Plymouth, should have no difficulty in finding the route. Mansfield talent was apparent last night at the dinner of the Civic Music association. First, there were the clever little place cards, made by Dr. W. E. Wygant. They were folded cards with a bar of music above the person's name and the music was from "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Every card was a different bar and the notes were printed by hand. The theme song itself, to the tune of the "Battle Hymn," was written by Mrs. George Vawter, 480 Fifth avenue, who won first prize five years ago in a Community Players play-writing contest.

Former Mayor Earl A. McFarland was back from a month's motor trip to Mexico and California today with praises for the kind of weather they have in the southwest. "We drove in rain two days—the day we left Mansfield and Sunday when we came back," he said. The weather was ideal all the rest of the time, he added. He and Mrs. McFarland drove nearly 7,000 miles on the trip without a mishap. They spent most of their time in California, Arizona and New Mexico.

HEARS APPEAL

District Court Gets Faber's Bond Suit at Ashland.

ASHLAND—The Fifth district court of appeals heard testimony here today in the appeal of County Treasurer H. O. Faber from a common pleas court decision which held that two surety companies could be relieved of $40,000 bonded obligations to Faber, under indictment for embezzlement and destruction of public records.

In the arguments this morning, counsel for the surety companies contended that Faber was not a party in the action to obtain release of the bonds and had no legal right to appeal from the common pleas court decision.

The surety companies won a decision in common pleas after they appealed from the Ashland county commissioners' action in refusing to release the bonding firms.

Faber's counsel argued that the surety companies could not legally appeal from the commissioners' action because their ruling was considered a special proceeding.

500 FLEE HOMES AS DAM BREAKS

Residents Quartered in Municipal Buildings; Homes Flooded.

JORDAN, Mont.—(U.P.)—Half the population of this eastern Montana farming town was quartered in homes and municipal buildings on the elevated north side today, refugees from a spring flood which tore out a $60,000 earthen dam at a nearby lake, and inundated their homes and thousands of acres of farmland.

Some 500 residents, forewarned late last night that the dam was breaking up despite efforts of CCC youths and volunteers to plug it with sandbags, escaped from the low southside before the water swept over the area.

BILLS REFLECT WPA LAY-OFFS

Relief Costs in February Up $600, Highest Since Last September, Report Says.

WPA lay-offs in Richland county during February were reflected today in an increase of more than $600 in the county relief expenditures during the past month, the monthly report of Relief Director J. Verne Finney showed.

The amount spent for direct relief during the month, the report said, was $10,520, the most since last September when expenditures totaled $12,459.

The largest expenditure was in Mansfield where $7,321 was spent to provide food, clothing and shelter for 540 families. Madison township spent $1,471 to care for its 154 families and Shelby's 62 cases cost that city $1,057.

Administrative costs which totaled $1,088 was for salaries of case workers, supplies and fuel, Non administrative costs including a WPA sewing project maintained at relief headquarters, NYA wood working project and federal surplus commodities were listed by Finney at $817.

Finney said 82 new certifications were made to WPA during the month and are now awaiting assignment of projects. He also reported that 130 persons had left WPA employment for private jobs, leaving a total of 1,054 persons employed on WPA in the county.

During the month the administration distributed more than 43,000 pounds of surplus commodities purchased from the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation. These included beans, flour, prunes, raisins, dried peaches, cereal and cornmeal.

OHIO FARM EXHIBIT AT WORLD FAIR IN N. Y. NEAR SHOWDOWN

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio apparently will not display agricultural products to visitors at New York's world fair—although last year's legislature insisted on a farm show as a condition to appropriating state funds for participating in the exposition.

Legislators representing farm areas will meet today with Arthur Hamilton, director of Ohio's exhibit, for a final showdown on the question but most of them agreed there was little hope for an agricultural display.

The question was carried to Gov. John W. Bricker last night during a long conference with legislative leaders but was not settled.

Senate Majority Leader Frank E. Whittemore said the Ohio exhibit as planned by the state commission could not logically include a farm show. It is intended, he said, to limit the state's display to a series of paintings and murals depicting the Buckeye state's industries and life.

When a special session of the legislature in 1938 appropriated $100,000 for the Ohio exhibit, the bill was passed only after being amended, on insistence of rural members, to provide that not less than $10,000 should be spent for an agricultural display.

The two highest-scoring farm exhibitors in the 1935, 1936 and 1937 Ohio State fairs were designated as managers of the world's fair display, Jay Lawrence of Coshocton and W. R. Powell of Newark were subsequently certified by the agricultural department to handle the show.

Last week the senate passed a bill appropriating an additional $40,000 to the commission in Charge of the Ohio exhibit but, at the same time, deleted from the previous law the provisions for the farm exhibit.

Mrs. Mary Hines Succumbs at Home of Daughter.

Mrs. Mary Hines, 84, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank R. Wendland, 405 Sherman Place, Monday evening after an illness of several months.

A native of Germany, Mrs. Hines resided near Crestline until 12 years ago when her husband, Jacob Hines, died. She had made her home with her daughter here for seven years.

QUICK APPROVAL PREDICTED FOR 'RIPPER BILL'

Proposal Gives Bricker Power to Fill All Key Jobs, Oust Holdover Appointees.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Reorganization of the state tax commission along lines proposed by Gov. John W. Bricker was placed on the senate calendar for a vote today and speedy approval was expected.

Second major revamping bill to reach the floor, the measure would abolish the present four-member commission and replace it with a single tax commissioner and three-member board of appeals.

Governor Bricker would be empowered to fill all the key jobs in the new setup, ousting holdover appointees from the previous Democratic administration.

Reorganization of the unemployment compensation system, first on the administration program, was completed two weeks ago.

Minor Matters In House.

Only minor bills were on the house calendar for the day and interest in this branch centered in the judiciary committee, which was expected to act on a labor-sponsored bill to curb authority of courts in granting injunctions affecting labor disputes.

Leaders of the Republican-controlled legislature meanwhile indicated they would renew the drive for finishing the assembly's urgent business and pave the way for adjournment at the earliest possible date.

The legislative program was discussed by Governor Bricker and leaders from both branches in a night conference that lasted until nearly midnight. The governor said no decision was reached but others attending indicated the Republican majority would seek to shut off enactment of additional laws promptly.

Poor relief, appropriations and administration reorganization bills apparently will be the only measures pressed by the majority, with the relief program the sole bar to ending working sessions by mid-April.

The house returned to committee for amendments last night a measure which would permit municipalties to levy taxes outside the 10-mill limitation for support of city universities if approved by 65 per cent of the voters.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Daily Worker Finds Self In Embarrassing Spot In Handling of Grocery Fight

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Some copy desks have a rule against mention of The Daily Worker, the bacterium of the Stalin, or Moscow, type of Nazi-Fascism. In such shops it is felt that good taste and decency forbid, and there is a reluctance to advertise an anti-American political malady.

Similarly, it were evasive and squeamish to refer to The Daily Worker merely as the organ of the Stalin Nazi-Fascists in this country and waggish to call it The Daily Loafer or the Moscow Beobachter, as it is also known. The subject is not one for waggery. Just as some things are too sacred for that, so others are too vile.

With this preamble, I refer to the recent expose of The Daily Worker's unguarded admission that opinon contrary to the Moscow editorial policy is excluded from its pages, even as paid advertisements, and its equally embarrassing request for ads for the A. & P. grocery stores which The Worker has denounced as robbers, preying on its readers.

It may be recalled that the Moscovites held carnival at the expense of certain American papers which had refused to accept libelous advertising copy for a certain book until the libel was corrected. This refusal was based on two grounds: First, the paper would have been financially responsible for the libel, and, second, decent journalism avoids false and scurrilous remarks about the neighbors.

That contrary opinon is consistently suppressed in the free American press is the constant charge of the Moscovites in New York and Washington, and of the anti-American bunds of German and Italian Nazi-Fascists, too.

In this case, The Worker, unknown to its readers, solicited as a paid advertisement a statement by the A. & P. stores of the arguments against the proposed law to abolish chain stores. The business was duly awarded to The Worker and was then rejected because it conflicted with The Worker's editorial views on chain stores. These views held chain stores to be robbers, exploiting and bleeding producer and consumer.

However, the letter of rejection said, The Worker was always "more than happy" to run the regular advertising of bargains in groceries.

This much was revealed in a recent number of these dispatches and The Daily Worker, confronted with its indiscreet, not to say treacherous, offer, runs an editorial in which it attempts to push on a rope, something that cannot be done.

The reply is windy and most irrelevant to the expose. In pugilism, when a fighter is nailed on the chin and goes through fancy but meaningless motions with his hands and feet, he is said to be "filling in" or "using the ring."

Nobody knows better than I the same manifestations in a writer. And the comrade who wrote The Worker's reply was just using his typewriter.

There is more than a column of copy, but the answer is a plea of guilty. For extenuations, The Worker can say only that, in its own editorial opinon, dictated of course, by Moscow, the A. & P. statement of its case was a lie. By that rule, The Worker approves suppression of all conflicting opinion and conflicting news as well remembering that, in Moscow, all news is opinionated.

If an editor disagrees with a statement, that statement is a lie from which he must protect his readers. If he can't answer an argument, the argument is false and must be suppressed. Therefore, the A. & P. could not state its case to The Worker.

As to the appeal for regular daily advertising revenue, The Worker explains that it wouldn't destroy the chains, but regulate them.

But, according to the worker, the chains are robbers and the letter offered to help the robber rob its readers now, today, in return for advertising revenue.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and sciences (pardon the formidable title but what can you do with it?) broke precedent this year.

Not in handing out its awards, of course. Any dope could have forecast the main results simply by putting two, two and Hollywood together. I say this advisedly, inasmuch as even I who look through a glass darkly managed a fair batting average on predictions.

They crossed us up (again!) by two-timing on Bette Davis and Spencer Tracy, who already had an Oscar apiece, but then that was an admitted possibility. (Only appalling prospect is that B. Davis will be up for it again next time, what with "Dark Victory" coming up. Seems to me they ought just to set up a permanent B. Davis Trophy—so the other little girls could win a door-stop once in a while.)

Where they broke precedent, really, was in the party they gave to commemorate the dishing out of the Golden Brass. You can't appreciate that unless you've been to eight or nine or ten Academy Awards dinners in the past—all as forbidding and deadly dull as the name of the august organization.

This year the thing was a party instead of an ordeal. I mean a Party where people, even the people who spell Glammer, seemed to have a good time. On the speaker's platform there were plenty of stiff shirts but no stuffed ones. The Academy, somewhere along the path of this past arduous, uncertain year of its existence, seems to have picked up what it lacked before—a Sense of Humor.

And when folks like Edgar Bergen and McCarthy and Snerd got up to speak, and Bob Hope, and other guys who know a laugh when they smell one three blocks away, I couldn't help thinking What a Change. . . . And Shirley Temple can't reach the mike, and giggles like a kid when she muffs her little speech—and is the more charming for it — and Spencer Tracy accepting his Oscar makes a minute speech about its really being meant for Father Flanagan, a speech so modest and so obviously sincere that it almost forbids the applause that crashes over him—and the amusing whimsy in the Disney award, a big Oscar with seven little Oscarites for "Snow White" . . . Well, I for one had a good time.

What a change, this, from the old Academy days when speakers made speeches. . . . when everybody was so veddy, veddy careful of his or her Precise Diction that the life was gone from what he or she had to say before he or she said it . . . which is a terrible way of putting it but typical of the extreme self-consciousness of the horrible occasions happily beyond recall. . . . Beyond recall because Hollywood, in growing up, has learned to relax a little and be itself. . . . And a pretty impressive self, sneerers to the contrary, it is. . . .

Anyway, maybe the difference this year was simply this—that neither Will Hays nor Louis B. Mayer, my favorite orators, got near the mike!

FOR YOUR CLOSET

A Fifth Avenue shop that specializes in equipment and gadgets for the clothes closet is featuring slabs of vitrolite, a new colored glass, to be laid beneath hangers to protect evening and dinner dresses that otherwise would touch the floor. The vitrolite may be had in a variety of pretty colors to harmonize with the scheme of your bedroom and can be cleaned merely by wiping off with a damp cloth. An extra shelf may also be achieved by having the material, undoubtedly obtainable from your own dealer, cut in the proper length and laid on top of the baseboard to stretch across the closet.

—Advice—

Thinks Girls Want to Wed Money

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

As a young man who has been turned down twice because he didn't have the price of luxuries, I am becoming somewhat embittered.

Why complain about the lack of morals in young men when girls want to know what kind of a car they can expect, what allowance they are to have for clothes and pin money? They claim to want love and marriage, but they want a de luxe version of the honorable estate.

Both of these girls who turned me down have parents who began without a penny. Their mothers cooked, washed, ironed, saved and scrimped, and today they live well. These girls want to begin where their parents are leaving off.

CELIBATE.

You've just happened to meet the wrong type of girl—calculating, too mercenary. I strongly suspect you've been high-flying around the more expensive country clubs, getting into society, and roaming around the upper brackets class. Get acquainted farther down the social slope. Try to meet some nice girls who work for their living, know the value of a dollar, and are domestically inclined.

The world is full of such—charming girls who are lonely, seldom have a date because they decline to drink and pet. Don't go after the social climbers who want to marry money. You just haven't got the price.

Novel Things For Dessert

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

It often happens that dinner is judged by its dessert, and it's a wise woman who takes advantage of this fact and makes sure her menu has a happy ending. An inexpensive cut of meat expertly prepared, well-cooked vegetables topped off by a really de luxe sweet course, help keep the budget where it belongs, yet form a dinner everyone enjoys. It isn't difficult for the modern housewife to provide a nice dessert every day if she takes advantage of modern failure-proof recipes.

Cream pie fillings that require no cooking are very easy to prepare, with sweetened condensed milk, hereafted referred to as s. c. m.

Here's one for Caramel Pineapple Pie. Thoroughly blend one can can caramelized s. c. m., two tablespoons pineapple juice and one cup drained crushed pineapple. Pour into baked pie shell. Cover with whipped cream or with a meringue made by beating two egg whites until stiff and adding two tablespoons sugar. If meringue is used, bake in 350 degree F. oven for 10 minutes or until brown. Chill before serving.

Pecan Tarts.

Pecan Tarts are made this way: Blend together one and one-third cups (one can) s. c. m., one-fourth cup lemon juice, the grated rind of half a lemon and one cup finely-chopped pecans. Pour into baked tart shells and top with rosettes of whipped cream. This amount will fill 12 small tarts. To make the rosettes, whip cream until stiff and use in a pastry bag or tube equipped with a rose tip.

Coffee desserts are always nice, but more than one reader says that she doesn't like to serve coffee desserts to a mixed company because some folk insist that anything with coffee in it keeps them awake when bed time comes. She asks for a recipe with decaffeinated coffee as an ingredient, if we have such a thing in our files. We have, and we are pleased to offer it to other interested readers. Mocha Tapioca requires one-third cup quick-cooking tapioca and one-fourth teaspoon salt added to two cups strong decaffeinated coffee. Cook this mixture in top of double boiler for 15 minutes or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add one-half cup sugar. Pour small amount tapioca and coffee mixture over two well-beaten egg yolks, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened. Remove from fire, cool and fold in two stiffly-beaten egg whites. Chill. Pile in sherbet glasses. Top wth whipped cream. Serves six.

Milk Aid To Health, Beauty

Milk has always been considered a necessity for beauty. As far back as the ancient and famous Cleopatra of the Nile regions and Poppea of early Rome milk was a beauty aid. In ancient times, however, those who sought beauty bathed their bodies, and washed their faces in the lactic substance.

Today, all American women know what a vital part milk plays in the diet of both young and old. If every woman would consume a quart of pasteurized milk daily she would be taking out the cheapest and most effective type of complexion insurance. At this time it is also the opportunity of every milk consuming family in the city to obtain health and education at one and the same time.

The Pasteurized Milk Dealers of Mansfield are now offering a 15-volume Standard American Encyclopedia to every person who presents 10 caps from quart bottles of pasteurized milk and a small amoun. in cash for each book. The entire set may be purchased at one time, or copy by copy. The encyclopedia will fill many home needs helping students in school work, adults with the preparing of papers, writing of articles, and adding to their knowledge.

Books are available on the second floor of the News-Journal building.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 15.

Progress, promotion and opportunity are among the fortuitous prospects for this day, judging by the friendly stars. There is likely to be a surprising opening for contacts with important persons or associations with major enterprises, big corporations or political, fraternal or diplomatic groups. Executive ability, tact and stratagem may be found desirable characteristics.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of excellent opportunity for promotion, progress and the attainment of high objectives. Superiors, employers and those in high standing and power will be found ready to give substantial cooperation and recognition to fine creative powers.

A child born on this day may have splendid abilities and talents to make its way to important position in life, being intelligent, industrious, shrewd and ambitious.

To your favorite muffin mixture add half a cup of any of the following ingredients: cranberries, nuts, raisins, currants, dates, cocoanut, drained crushed pineapple, grated cheese, chopped prunes, candied fruit or grated sweet chocolate.

My Neighbor Says:

Marshmallows make a simple frosting for sheet cakes. Place the marshmallows on top of the cake and broil or bake it for about five minutes—or until the marshmallows have become browned and puffed.

Plant shallow rooted annuals over the tulip bulbs they will give color for the rest of the season and will do but little harm to the bulbs underneath.

Correct Constipation Before—Not After!

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of emergency relief. Why let yourself suffer those dull lifeless days because of constipation, why bring on the need for emergency medicines, when there may be a far better way? That way is to KEEP regular by getting at the cause of the trouble.

If it's common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, a pleasant, nutritious, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—goes straight to the cause by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

THEATERS

HOLLYWOOD NOTES: The party that Constance Bennett and Elsa Maxwell gave for the Earl of Warwick offered guests nothing original or out of the ordinary—except that favors were love birds in cages. . . . Preview of "Ice Follies of 1939" shows that Joan Crawford has less footage than in any picture she has made. . . . Shirley Temple's picture "The Little Princess" got rave notices from Pacific coast critics. . . . Frank Morgan celebrates his 25th wedding anniversary this month and also the 25th anniversary of his taking up the stage for a career. . . . James Cagney will play the Scotch-American hero, John Paul Jones. . . .

England's Finest.

Every once in a while English studios turn out a film that so far outranks American products that it becomes a bit embarrassing (it is happening more frequently of late), and such a picture is "The Beachcomber," booked for the Ohio Wednesday and through Saturday. Somerset Maugham's "Vessel of Wrath" provides Charles Laughton with one of his finest vehicles—a sort of male Sadie Thompson with far more vices than ever beset even that "fancy lady." Elsa Lanchester, one of the finest of English actresses, who fled the wilds of Hollywood after they had cast her as the bride of Frankenstein, has the role of the man-hunting missionary.

Wise Cracks Help.

Smart dialogue and some clever wisecracks keep "Wife, Husband and Friend" moving along fast enough to make good screen entertainment. While it isn't one of the best of Warner Baxter's pictures it probably satisfies his followers—which are many. Loretta Young is seen as the pampered wife who wants to be a singer but hasn't much to go on but her ambition and looks. Cesar Romero, Binnie Barnes, Eugene Pallette and Helen Westley are in the supporting cast of this Madison theater attraction.

Cortez as Director.

Ricardo Cortez, who was the Handsome Menace in pictures for years is now behind the megaphone and one of his directorial jobs is seen in "Inside Story" at the Majestic. Michael Whalen, ace New York reporter, sets out to find the loneliest girl in New York City—and runs into an exciting murder story. Chick Chandler is a photographer and Jean Rogers is the girl. Burns and Allen, Martha Raye and Bob Hope make up a star cast in "College Swing."

New Adventures.

Supplementing "The Citadel," with Robert Donat and Rosalind Russell, one of the year's smash hits, is "Meet the Girls," with June Lang and Lynn Bari, which is another of the Big Town Girl series. The two features are at the Ritz today and Wednesday. The latest adventure of the two girls revolves around the theft of a valuable diamond on board a luxury liner. Erik Rhodes, of the English accent, gives chief support.

The Racket Buster.

Romance is linked with peril for Chester Morris and Frances Mercer in "Smashing the Rackets," the number one feature at the Park for Wednesday only. Morris is a go-get-'em prosecutor who goes after the big organized rackets and who is engaged to a society girl. Both of them are in danger when the prosecutor strikes at the big shots. "Radio Follies" with Helen Chandler and Teddy Joyce and his swing band is the second feature.

Nut-cheese balls placed on a fruit or vegetable salad plate add color and variety. To make the balls, shape white, yellow or cottage cheese into one-inch balls and roll them in shredded nuts.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

My spirits rose unconscionably at Katharine's report.

"You don't mean by any chance that Noel is the cause of dissension?" I asked.

"You hit the bull's eye the very first thing," she said with a smile. "Of course, I didn't stick around for the gory details, but I heard enough to know that Olga is giving her daughter a royal wigging upon the counts of trying to allure Noel, spending too much time with him, and, above all, of forgetting that Noel is married."

"'You have no right to give him any more time than you would Mr. Graham or Mr. Underwood,' I heard her say to Olina," Katharine went on, "and, as in their excitement neither of them had seen me, I slipped away unheard. As Olga's nurse," she explained, "I have not knocked when I entered her room, but now that she is better, I see I shall have to begin the practice."

"She is really better, then?" I asked.

"Virtually well," Katharine answered. "You need not fear to upset her by anything you may have to say to her. She's her strong, poised self again, and if old Phil Veritzen has any yen to marry her, he'd better watch his step. She'll lead him a merry dance, that royal lady, and I don't mean maybe."

"I don't care what she does to him," I said a bit viciously, for I was beginning to feel what Dicky calls "fed-up" with the whole mess. "All I'm interested in just now is keeping my bargain to see her."

"That will be easy," Katharine said comfortably. The row can't continue forever; indeed, it sounded as if Olga had used up about all her ammunition, and as if Olina were about ready to take the count. You would better go down and discuss your luncheon at your leisure; I am sure your mother-in-law is waiting patiently to enjoy it with you. And after you are through I'll scout around again and see how the land lies. Does that suit you?"

"Perfectly," I answered, and I had no sooner uttered the word than it was punctuated by a knock on the door, unmistakably Katie.

"Oh! Missis Graham," she said, "Old womans shes ay loonch she all ready, you plees coom qveeck und eat before she all get coldt."

"Tell her I shall come down immediately," I said, and Katie, evidently with the fear of my mother-in-law upon her, whirled abruptly and dashed out. As we heard here feet rapidly pattering down the stairs, Katharine cocked an ironical eyebrow at me.

"Evidently our Katie has had the fear of God put into her," she commented.

"It looks that way," I admitted, adding ruefully, "I wonder what I'll get."

Kahtraine gave me a whimsical grin.

"Probably plenty," shes aid, "although from all outward appearances you are in high favor with her. But may I remind you that you won't be if you keep her waiting much longer?"

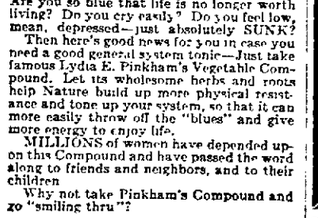
"The Authority on Authorities"

IT PAYS TO LOOK AHEAD

INSTEAD OF JUST following the bidding conventions with which you have been equipped, it will pay you to look ahead and try to foresee the probable situation they will produce. You may then find it advisable to depart a little bit from the absolutely literal formula and temporarily give a picture of your hand which is slightly different from the exact facts. Thus you sacrifice a particle of accuracy in behalf of some other consideration, such as uncrowding the bidding or keeping the initiative on your side of the table.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

At all tables of a tournament South opened this deal with 2-Hearts and North bid 2-No trump. South's second round bid was 3-Hearts at most tables, with the idea that a subsequent showing of spades would then make it clear to North that the relative length of the suits was six hearts and only four spades. In some cases North followed the 3-Hearts with 3-No trump and in others with 4-Hearts. Either of those bids put South in a nasty fix. If he bid his Spades now, it would be at the level of four, five or six, or would South jump to 6-Hearts when he supported, or perhaps 7-Hearts? All of those bids were made, and in each case passed by North, including the 7-Hearts, which was set with the loss of a diamond trick.

Only one pair reached the maximum contract. Here, after the negative response to his heart force, South bid 3-Spades and North properly supported to 4-Spades. This gave the initiative to South, armed with knowledge of his partner's fit of four cards. So he hopped to 7-Spades and made it. West's lead of the club A was ruffed, three trumps cashed, the heart Q used to get into dummy to lead the spade J, discarding the low diamond, and South's hand was then solid. South had profited because he saw there were more important considerations than merely showing exact distribution.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

With the club 4 led, how should North try for 3-No trump?

Changing Eyebrow Styles

By MME. QUI VIVE.

Young ladies of a tender age have a notion that eyebrow plucking is a fairly new idea. It's a long course this beauty fad has run. There is always a turning point. Some girls haven't found out that the turning point has arrived.

The inscrutable, mask-like countenance that has been smarty is no longer the mode. It doesn't fit with peplums, full skirts, feathered bonnets, fans and trailing robes. The quaint sartorial revivals from the nineties call for natural facial scenery.

You've tortured your eyebrows long enough, my pretties. It is time to give them tender care. It is a wonder they have survived, that you have any material left with which to do your home beauty work.

After you have creamed your face at night, dip a finger in olive or mineral oil, give the eyebrows a rotary massage. With the first finger of either hand start at the inner tips, do little circles to the farther ends. Lift your eyebrows while doing that. With the flesh firm and solid the massage will be more effective than if the tissues are reflexed.

Dig through your beauty props, find your little brush, give the brows a good currying. They can be shaped by brushing. At the inner terminal brush upward. Sweep straight along the center. Do a downward line at the far end. This gives a pattern like the wing of a bird in flight. Bewitching.

A first aid kit is almost a necessity in the home where there are children. It should contain iodine for cuts, gauze, adhesive tape, petroleum jelly for burns, boric acid solution for inflammations, a good liniment and other home remedies.

Rex Billiards Win Play-Off, Retain Senior Loop Title

Boasts Better Record

Akron North, Tygers' Foe in Tourney Game, Beaten Only Three Times.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)—High-scoring offenses and closely-knit defenses compose the heavy armament of the 32 teams entered in this week-end's Ohio high school basketball tournament at the state fairground coliseum.

The all-star cast boasted 23 quintets which rolled through the preliminary campaign at better than a point-a-minute clip.

Weakest on Defense.

And so tight were the defenses of the qualifiers that not one allowed the opposition in the point-a-minute class, Akron Garfield permitting the greatest advance by the enemy in allowing an average of 31.2 points per tilt.

Bridgeport topped the high-average scorers with 43.2 per game, but was second from the bottom in the points-allowed division with a mark of 30.4. Akron Garfield, with the loosest defense, was second on the high-scoring list with 40.2.

In Class B the Maumee contingent was tops offensively with 40.4 per game, just a neck ahead of Rittman and Green township which tied for runner-up laurels with 39.1 Glenford had the worst defensive record in the minor section, allowing 26.3 per game, while Harpster was second with 26.1.

The best defensive skill was shown by Upper Arlington, 1937 Class B champion, which allowed the foe 19.1 points per game, a little better than the 19.8 chalked up by Spring Valley of Green county.

Dayton Fairview, which lost three of 19 games, showed the greatest scoring advantage over the opposition, the Gem City crew scoring 37.9 and allowing 24 per game, for a differential of 13.9, just a tenth of a point better than Bellefontaine's 13.8, manufactured with a 36.4 offense and a 22.6 defense.

Green township, winner of 29 straight games and the only unbeaten team in Ohio, tied Sandusky St. Marys, 1936 champion, for the differential honors in Class B, each finishing an average of 18.4 points ahead.

Class of the field is illustrated by the fact the 16 Class B quintets won 335 games while losing 46 during the pre-tourney firing, while the Class A teams copped 258 and lost 61. Two of the Class A teams suffered only one defeat during the year, Bryan finishing with 20-1, and Bellefontaine with 17-1, while five Class B quintets fell but once and Green township escaped altogether.

Toledo Devilbiss was whipped seven times for the low mark in Class A, while Portsmouth, Bexley, Bridgeport and Mansfield were six-time losers. Dennison, Harpster, Union City and Glenford dropped five each in Class B, but the other dozen suffered fewer losses.

Point to Newark

Despite the multiple losses chalked up against some of the squads, each thought it had a chance to win the title. All pointed to the 1936 performance of a late-developing Newark squad which won only five of 18 games during the preliminary season, and then romped off with the Class A gonfalon.

Here are the records of the teams, with their offensive and defensive averages, the squads being paired with Thursday's opening round opponents:

2775 Series Puts Buffalo In Fourth

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Leaders of the four events of the current American Bowling Congress today seemed assured of little disturbance for the next 48 hours as booster teams, with averages of less than 851 monopolize the drives until another pack of regulars hits the deck Thursday night.

Paced by the 685 pitching of Thomas Fortunato the Belmonte No. 1 team of Buffalo Independent Order of Foresters soared above its humble classification to reach fourth place in the five-man standings with 2775 on games of 951-958-966.

Henry Wolfe of Bendix, N. J. grabbed the solo top by a one-pin margin on a 681 strike spree and gave Otto Lange's 636 a boost of 817 sticks which earned the Eclipse Aviation pin aces into second place in the doubles on 1249.

Defeat Dairys, 38-21

Wallop Raemelton Farms in First Game of Series Staged at Friendly House.

IT WON'T be necessary to stage a playoff to decide the championship in the Friendly House Senior Class A league.

The Rex Billiards, who annexed the opening round title, made sure of that last night at the settlement by winning the second round crown in a playoff in which they eliminated three teams to retain the title.

Brubach Leads Way.

With Freddie Brubach leading the way, the Cuemen copped the second half crown by defeating the Miller Dairys, 38 to 21, in the third and deciding game before a well-filled gymnasium.

The Billiards ran into trouble in winning the two tussles necessary to cop the title, but when the chips were down they couldn't be beat.

Mike Wentz paced the Cuemen as they walloped the Raemelton Farms, 29 to 19, in the first game, while the Dairys disposed of the Musille Cigars, 36 to 27, in the other contest to win a place in the final affair.

But the Dairys were unable to halt the sharp-shooting Cuemen, and never held command of the situation at any time. The Billiards their eyes set on the Senior league crown, jumped into the lead in the early minutes of the contest and made sure of winning the important affray by blanking the Miller outfit in the second stanza.

The Rexmen led, 9 to 4, in the initial frame, 19 to 4 at the half and 30 to 13 at the end of the third stanza. Bruback set the individual pace with 10 points, while Gramly and Moritz topped the losers with five markers apiece.

Dairys Find Trouble.

Miller's combine met some stiff opposition in its game with the Cigars. The clubs went into the final chapter with the score deadlocked at 22-all. At this point the Dairys began hitting with regularity to pile up a comfortable advantage and ice the contest. Musilles held a slim 12 to 10 lead at the rest period. Jim Heiser of the Dairys was high-point man with 12 markers.

While limiting their rivals to a single point in the opening chapter, the Billiards hopped into a lead that was never seriously threatened by the Farm club. The winners led 16 to 9 at the intermission. Mike Wentz led the Billiards with 10 points.

--- SHE WAS HELD ON SUSPICION AT FIRST, BUT DAVID GOT HER OUT, AND HAS SUCCEEDED IN DELAYING AN INDICTMENT SO FAR. IT'S TERRIBLE TO EVEN SUSPECT HER, SHE'S SO SWEET AND GENTLE! — DAVID IS WORKING HARD TO GET SOME EVIDENCE!
HE IS A REMARKABLE MAN — SHE IS FORTUNATE HE IS HER BROTHER!

JUDGE PUFFLE By Gene Ahern

AH—KUMPF— I WANT YOU LADS TO MEET THE COMING SENSATION OF THE MAT WORLD! —UNDER MY MANAGEMENT, HE WILL APPEAR IN WRESTLING BOUTS AS, "THE MAN FROM MARS"!— —HAW,—FANCY THE STIR OF EXCITEMENT WHEN HE CLIMBS IN THE RING, WEARING A BIZARRE HOOD ON HIS HEAD AND HIS BODY COVERED WITH ALUMINUM PAINT!
AT FIRST I THOUGHT MARS WAS IN TH' OLD COUNTRY, BUT TH' MANAGER TELLS ME IT'S A STAR! — YOU GUYS EVER HEAR OF IT— OR IS HE GIVING ME TH' RIB?
HE'S KIDDING! —THE STAR WRESTLERS COME FROM MARS!—IT'S NEAR TURKEY, AND THERE'S A SONG CALLED "THE MARSEILLAISE!"
HE'LL LOOK SOMETHING LIKE A RADIATOR

LIST IMPROVES IN REACTION TO LONDON RALLY

English Market Advances Following Resignation of Czech Government.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Rallying tendencies seeped into the stock market today. Leaders were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Great Northern and Chesapeake & Ohio.

The market displayed improvement in the wake of a rally in London following word the Czech government had resigned. This was taken to mean that a flare-up over the declaration of independence by Slovakia would be avoided. Bonds were a trifle uneven, as were commodities.

Holders of copper shares noted figures of the copper institute showing world stocks of the refined metal increased 13,005 tons in February to 493,114.

Interest was expressed in announcement Eastman Kodak would offer 225,092 shares of authorized but unissued common to stock-holders on a one-for-ten basis.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York estimated bankers acceptances outstanding in the United States as of Feb. 28, declined $7,306,991 from Jan. 31 to $248,095,184, a new low aggregate since publication of monthly figures began in 1925.

The action of A-nuric in flushing the kidneys, diluting acid and relieving irritation has given relief to thousands of men and women. Mr. W. C. Peasley, Route 2, Bradford, Pa., says "Because of loss of rest I would feel so tired and worn out, never seemed to have pep enough to do my work properly, but since using Dr. Pierce's A-nuric Tablets I feel just fine and am not annoyed by getting up nights." WESTINGHOUSE INCOME CUT IN HALF IN 1938

Annual Report Shows 35 Per Cent Drop in Orders But Profit Every Month.

Despite a 35 per cent decline in volume of orders, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company operated at a profit every month in 1938, the company's annual report to stockholders showed today.

The Mansfield works, one of 14 operated by the company, shared in the firm's net income of $9,052,773 for the year which paid a $3.38 dividend on each share of stock.

In 1937, the net income was $20,126,408, equal to $7.66 a share on common stock. The company had a working capital of $98,680,585 at the end of the year, a decline of about $1,000,000 from 1937.

Orders received last year by the company amounted to $149,662,776, a decrease of 35 per cent from the $229,540,061 total in 1937. Unfilled orders Dec. 31 last year were $40,188,150 as compared with $60,298,087 at the end of the preceding year.

Business so far this year at the Mansfield plant, however, has shown a steady increase, and officials of the company predict that 1939 will show a marked increase over the 1938 figures.

See Signs of Improvement.

"As this report is released, there are definite signs of an improvement in business. We expect the improvement to continue during the year," A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board, and G. H. Bucher, president, asserted in their statement to stockholders.

Commenting on the effect of the Fair Labor Standards act of 1938, they said:

"The Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, which went into effect Oct. 24, applies substantially to all Westinghouse divisions by reason of the fact that all are largely engaged in manufacture for interstate commerce. However, the effect upon the company has not been unduly burdensome, although it has resulted in considerably increased record-keeping.

"Westinghouse standards in general, both as to hours and pay, for some years have been more liberal than the requirements of the act. The Westinghouse basic week has been 40 hours since Sept. 1, 1935, and for a much longer period the company's hourly rate has been higher than the legal minimum provision of 25 cents an hour.

"The wage and salary adjustment plan adopted May 1, 1936, has now continued in successful operation during a complete cycle of high and low business activity. During the year the monthly adjustment figure declined from 9 per cent in January to zero in October. Improvement in earnings brought the figure back to 3 per cent in November and 4 per cent in December. The average for the year was 3.2 per cent."

On taxes, Robertson and Bucher reported:

"A matter of considerable concern has been the progressively increasing tax rates which have resulted in mounting tax bills that threatened seriously to affect operating results. The tax bill in 1938 was much lower, but this was due principally to reduced earnings.

"In 1935 taxes amounted to $1.85 per share of capital stock; in 1936 they totaled $3.35 per share; in 1937, $5.26 per share; and in 1938, $2.65 per share. Taxes represented $269 per employe (average number) in 1937; whereas in 1938 the figure was $167."

The report showed that the volume of the company's business in the export field increased slightly during the year. While there was a tendency toward increases in exchange restrictions in some countries, collections continued satisfactorily.

A New Way to Buy a New Car at a New Low Cost!

Preferred Buyers Plan

The Car Buying Public wanted it . . . Auto Dealers asked for it . . . and General Finance Corporation is the first to give—

A BETTER DEAL TO NEW CAR BUYERS!

What is this revolutionary new Plan? Why is it called the PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN? Because up to now, finance sources have not given proper recognition to the fact that the chance for loss decreases as the down payment on a new car increases.

PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN rewards the buyer who makes a larger down payment by giving him a lower rate. Yet the buyer who makes a small down payment never pays more than the former, lowest rate!

Savings up to 50%

Thus, the larger the down payment the lower the finance rate. This fairer way reduces finance costs 33-1/3% to 50% to many buyers. See the table of examples for representative savings up to 50% of former costs!

Obtainable From ANY Dealer

Select the car you prefer. Sit down with your dealer and work out all financing details in a few minutes. Everything — including complete insurance protection is handled at one time, in one place. No annoying red tape — no running from one place to another. And by buying under an installment contract, you conserve your bank credit and borrowing power for unforeseen emergencies! Read how General Finance Corporation's liberal policy gives you extra benefits — then insist upon the PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN when you get your next car!

Lowest in Cost!
DEPENDING ON DOWN PAYMENT AS LITTLE AS $3 PER YEAR PER $100

How new car buyers save money with Preferred Buyers Plan

Representative Savings On Customary Unpaid Balances

400	24.00	16.00	33⅓%
500	30.00	25.00	16⅔%

Only basic finance costs are shown above. In all instances protective insurance is required, the cost of which is extra.

A Fair Policy—A Square Deal

General Finance Corporation treatment of customers is frank, generous and considerate in all respects. These points summarize its liberal attitude.

1. Generous extension of payment dates in time of stress.
2. Finance charge rebate if contract is paid before maturity.
3. In the event of accident, repair bills below minimum insurance coverage (deductible type policy) financed without charge.
4. Special consideration in the case of illness or unemployment — real cooperation before repossession.

3 COMPLIANCE SURVEYS MADE ON FHA HOMES

Inspections Ordered to Make Certain Plans Are Being Properly Followed.

When the Federal Housing administration issues a commitment to insure the mortgage on proposed residential construction, at least three compliance inspections are required.

These compliance inspections result in: (1) Determination of whether the improvements are completed in accordance with the approved plans and specifications; (2) assistance in the form of advice and suggestions as a means of securing compliance; and (3) reports and photographs of the property as evidence and record of completion.

First Inspection Early.

The first compliance inspection is made either when excavation is completed and ready for footings and foundations or when the foundation walls are complete and ready for backfill.

In the event the property is not completed in a satisfactory manner, an additional compliance inspection may be necessary.

When making the first compliance inspection the FHA inspector determines if the construction is proceeding in conformity with the approved plans and specifications and with acceptable standards of workmanship and good engineering practice. This is consummated by observing the following: (1) Location of the building lines on the lot; (2) depth and size of excavation; (3) character and formation of the subsoil, including bearing capacity and presence of filled earth or faults; (4) presence of springs or ground water; (5) fall between the house lines and the main sewer as well as the adequacy of drainage for the entire property; and (6) condition of footing trenches and suitability of forms where required.

Study Other Factors.

During the second compliance inspection the following are observed: (1) Foundations, if not inspected during first compliance inspection; (2) superstructure of building; and (3) roughing-in for mechanical and convenience equipment.

During the third compliance inspection the following are observed: (1) Plaster and plaster base; (2) mill, cabinet and stair work; (3) floor and wall materials and finishes; (4) painting, wall covering and decorating; (5) glazing, weatherstripping, and calking; (6) rough and finish hardware; (7) plumbing fixtures and equipment; (8) radiators, ducts and grilles, boilers, heaters, air-conditioning units, stokers, oil burners, and auxiliary devices such as automatic controls; (9) electrical equipment; (10) certificates of approval, if these are on the premises; (11) gutters, downspouts, and other sheetmetal work; (12) walks, drives, and grading; (13) accessory buildings; and (14) private water and sewage-disposal systems.

RESUME FLOOD TAX COLLECTION

Conservancy Office Re-opened After Being Closed Since Feb. 25 Due to Shortage.

The Mansfield Conservancy district tax office, closed Feb. 25 for a check-up by a state examiner, was open again today for the collection of levies for the first half of the year.

County Treasurer John E Kolb urged property owners who pay conservancy tax to present their receipts for taxes paid in the last two or three years so as to enable State Examiner Irvin Young to determine the exact amount of shortage in tax funds.

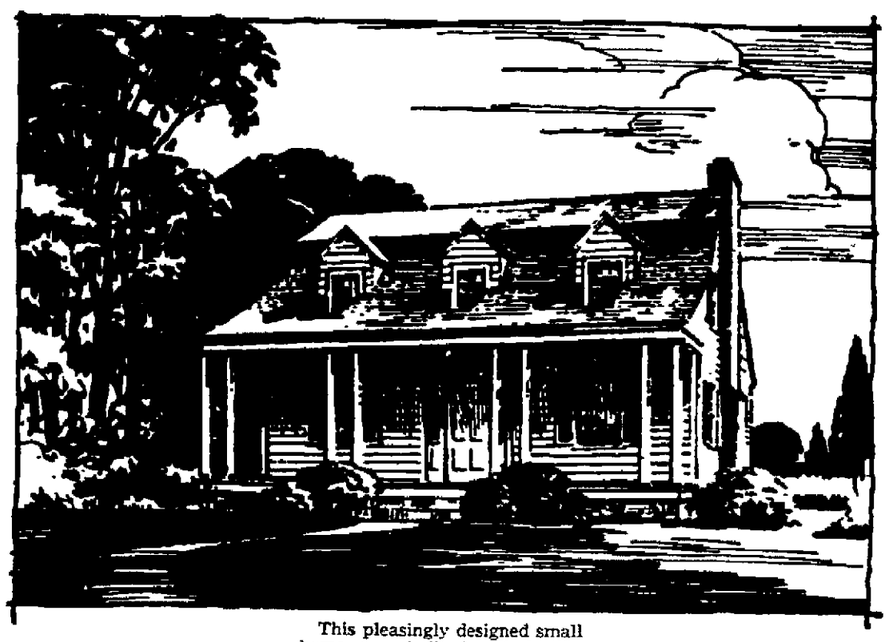
Young has been auditing the conservancy books since the office was closed following the dismissal of Russell K. Erdenberger, former collector, who began a one-to-10 year term in the Ohio penitentiary yesterday for embezzlement.

Discrepancies in the tax funds were estimated at $1,777, but authorities believed the auditor's report might show a larger figure.

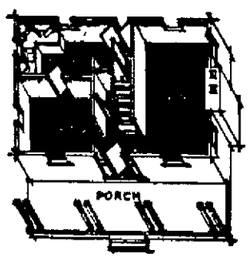
Deputy Treasurer Paul W Mitchell has been placed in charge of the office which is located in the basement of the courthouse.

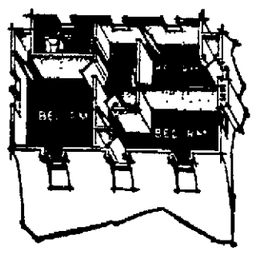
Materials And Supplies HOMES Plans And Estimates

Ohio Home With Colonial Treatment



This pleasingly designed small home was built in Circleville, O., with the asistance of a $4,500 mortgage insured by the Federal Housing administration. The second floor is unusually well supplied with natural ight and ventilation by means of well placed dormers and adequate side windows. Another feature worthy of comment is the closet space provided for each room. The living room has a high degree of privacy. It is not necessary to pass through the living room to get to any other part of the house, an arrangement not altogether unusual i na small home.





STILL LEADER IN SALES TAX

County Shows Steady Increase Over Last Year, Continues as Pace Setter in State.

Richland county continued as one of the leaders in the state in business improvement in the final week of February, with sales tax receipts showing a 12 per cent increase over the same week last year, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported today.

The county's tax collections, which showed a gain of $7,200 for the first two months of 1939 over the corresponding months last year, have consistently ranked among the best in Ohio from standpoint of increase and indicate a steady improvement in retail sales.

The county's receipts for the last week of the month amounted to $7,230 as compared with $6,376 in the corresponding week of 1938. Total collections to March 1 were $60,873.

Receipts for the entire state to March 1 were $5,294,712, a gain of $257,000 over last year's figures for the first two months.

Fifty-two of the state's 88 counties reported gains for January and February of this year. The majority of the counties with increased collections were in the industrial northern half of the state.

ROOM FOR MAID

A maid's small attic room with bath adjoining, has the walls painted shell pink and the woodwork powder blue. The furniture is also painted blue and the calico curtains which combine both tones against a white background are tied back over glass curtains of white crossbar muslin. The bathroom is done in blue and white.

FALL CHERRIES DEVELOPED

WOOSTER, O —(U.P.)— Pears without seeds and cherries that ripen in the fall have been developed at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station here. The cherry tree has been named "Sweet September."

STRUCTURAL CHANGES NEEDED IN INTENSIVE MODERNIZATION

Structural changes are often needed during the course of extensive modernization to stores, shops, and other commercial establishments, according to Federal Housing Administration officials.

Obstacles sometimes consist of supporting piers or columns which cannot be removed without major structural changes. If it is possible to elliminate them without endangering safety, their removal may provide space for other use.

Where building supports of this type must be retained, FHA officials point out that they may be converted into points of vantage and prove to be assets rather than liabilities. Attractive mirrors may be installed, which reflect light and enlarge the vista. Shelves and showcases may be built around them for merchandise display.

Washrooms or special departments, storage space, or repair or workrooms may be made from the space resulting from elimination of awkward angles and corners.

Ramps provide the best treatment for varying floor levels which are hard to handle.

FROSTED MIRROR

To achieve a frosted effect on a mirror, a solution of stale beer and epsom salts is sometimes used. The glass is first thoroughly cleaned and dried and the mixture applied with a sponge. When dry, a flaky, frosted effect is produced. This may be removed when desired simply by washing with lukewarm water. Do not undertake the process in damp, humid weather.

BELATED DEGREE NEAR

EMPORIA, Kas. —(U.P.)— This spring, 26 years after first entering college, Mrs. Margaret Carr Hardman will receive a degree. She will be graduated from Emporia State Teachers college with a Bachelor of Science in education.

ROOM FOR CHILD

A child's room is made intriguing by painting the walls white with small silhouetted figures in black along the dado line. The woodwork is white. A cornice border of red, white and black gives spice to the room. Red glazed chintz with a white snowflake pattern is used for the curtains, and a spread of checked gingham in black and white with a red border covers the bed—which like the dresser, chest—desk and play table— is of maple wood in natural finish.

MODERNIZE AND PAY-AS-YOU-GO

Majority of Heating Plants Need Improvement; Stoves Still in Wide Use.

Modernization of heating equipment differs from other kinds of modernization in that it can be done progressively, step by step, as the family budget permits, the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau explains.

Despite the numerous financing plans now available for home improvement, many families still prefer the pay-as-you-go policy. To these the bit by bit plan of modernization is particularly appealing.

There are two well-defined types of heating modernization. One is the replacement of a stove by a central heating plant. The other is the improvement or replacement of an existing central heating plant.

The modernization market in both groups is very extensive. More than 16,000,000 of the approximately 30,000,000 homes in the United States are still being heated with stoves. As for the modernization of central heating plants, developments in heating equipment have been so phenomenal in recent years that the majority of existing plants can be improved in some respect.

In the case of a house heated by a stove, the first step in a progressive modernization plan is the installation of a hot water or steam boiler, manually fired, and the necessary radiation. By purchasing the all-purpose type of boiler, the homeowner can subsequently, when finances permit, convert the plant to automatic firing, without the necessity of replacing the boiler. The third step would be the addition of forced circulation and indirect water heating. The fourth, or final step, the addition of a unit for adding humidification and for circulating and cleaning the air.

Similarly, an existing hot water or steam heating plant can be improved step by step as finances permit.

CITY'S BUSINESS GAINS CONTINUE FOR 3RD MONTH

'Plus Signs' Prediminate in All But One Classification During February.

For the third successive month "plus sign" predominated the Mansfield barometer during February, with only one classification failing to show a gain over the same period a year ago.

This was disclosed in a monthly review of business conditions released today by the Chamber of Commerce.

In comparison with the figures for February, 1938, all businesses showed increases in February of this year ranging from 20 per cent to 287 per cent, with one exception. That was bus fares which was 3.8 per cent under the figures of a year ago.

Automobile registrations totaled 147 last month as compared with 98 in February of 1938, an increase of 50 per cent.

Building Sets Pace.

Paced by a record February building, valuations totaling $127,406 soared 287 per cent over the $32,805 recorded for this period last year.

Mercantile employment which showed an increase of 3 per cent over January totaled 1,631 persons, an increase of 470 on payrolls over February, 1938. Industrial employment was up 1 per cent during February, a gain of 47 per cent over a year ago with 9,242 persons employed.

Bank clearings reached $5,844,602, an increase of 13.6 per cent over the $5,175,956 of the corresponding period a year ago.

Postal receipts up 25 per cent totaled $29,219 as compared with $23,224 in February, 1938. Sales tax receipts of $29,273 increased 13.5 per cent over the $25,802 for February last year. February carloading also jumped 24.2 per cent to 2,937.

BUSINESS HOURS IN WAR

CHUNGKING—(U.P.)— Business hours begin at 3 p. m. in Chungking since the majority of the shopkeepers remain in the countryside throughout the morning and early afternoon until all danger of an air raid is past.

HAPHAZARD MUNICIPAL GROWTH CAUSES LOWER TAX REVENUES

There is a growing realization by heads of local governments that hit-or-miss municipal growth inevitably leads to declining tax revenues and financial difficulties, according to Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald.

McDonald substantuated his statement by citing the increase in city planning or zoning boards in the period from 1922 to 1936. In 1922, he pointed out, there were only 185 such boards, compared with more than 1,200 in 1936.

"Towns everywhere are putting greater emphasis on planning, zoning, and subdivision-control measures," McDonald said. "No longer do they go on the theory that control measures are not needed, nor do they accept neighborhood blight as part of the life cycle of properties and a symptom of growth.

"The mistakes of the past have given municipal governing bodies a basis for future constructive action. Those mistakes have meant millions in lost taxes, shorter economic life for thousands of properties, and general neighborhood blight.

"The Federal Housing Administration, as port of its duty under the National Housing Act, coopeates through its Land Planning Division with local communities everywhere. We meet with civic groups and public officials to outline the benefits of city-planning and proper land-control programs, pointing out what factors should be covered, such as types of construction, family density, location of parks and streets, etc. The retention of qualified advisers is recommended."

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER NINETEEN

For a long time after she had telephoned Jim's boarding house and learned that he had received her message and had not come to her, Lona paced the floor of her hotel room trying to control her despair. What was she going to do now, she asked herself? She was alone, friendless, without a job—back where she had been the night when he had rescued her from the park!

Why hadn't he passed her up, her heart cried out, now, in maddening pain? Why hadn't he allowed her to go her own way? It would have been all over by now. She would have been at rest, somehow. In the river, probably. Instead, he had snatched her back, taught her what friendship meant, shown her how sweet living could be, and now....

She couldn't bear it! Sobbing, suddenly, with the uncontrollable sobs of utter exhaustion and hopeless despair, she flung herself headlong on the bed and buried her head in the pillow. It had been only the thought of Jim that had sustained her through this past week. She knew now. Always he had been in the back of her mind. She had known he would be waiting and was comforted. It couldn't be true! Jim couldn't be like all the others. She couldn't believe . . .

The hands on the clock passed the midnight hour as she lay there sobbing. She slept, finally, in a fitful sort of way, a troubled sleep broken by thoughts of Jim. Once, far into the night, she started to her feet, certain that she had heard knocking at her door. She sobbed again as she realized it was only a dream. The cold gray of dawn found her still dressed, tossing on the bed.

"Jim!" she called, rousing at the beat of the porter's footsteps outside her door. Then realization possessed her brain, realization that it was a new day and that she must face it alone. She lay for a long time staring at the light creeping so hopefully in through the shaded windows.

A new day! How would she ever go through with it, and with the endless, pointless succession of days to come? What use trying to go through them, something deep within her cried out and, finding a little comfort in the very strength of her despair, she turned over on her side and slept again, soundly this time, her breath coming quickly now and then in little sobbing gasps like that of a child who has cried itself to sleep.

* * *

It was almost nine o'clock when she awoke aagin to the shrill, insistant ringing of her room phone. Trembling suddenly, she picked up the receiver and breathed a hesitant "Hello!"

"Hello, girl." It was Jim's drawl that came back to her.

For a moment she couldn't answer. "Oh, Jim! Jim!" she cried, then.

"Why, girl, what's the matter?" The tears in her voice must have carried over the wire. "Are you up?" he demanded. "Can I see you?"

"I'll be right down," she told him. "Wait in the lobby."

It was the quickest dressing she had ever done in her life. Discarding her rumpled suit, she slipped into a summer dress and tidied up her disordered hair. Her eyes in the mirror were circled, and she looked small and very tired. In spite of the dizziness that reminded her she had been twenty-four hours without food, she almost ran down the corridor to the clicking elevator.

He was standing, hatless, in the hotel lobby, his tall figure erect, his sturdy legs spread slightly apart, bracing him, giving him that indescribable outdoor air that seemed so much a part of him. At sight of her, the brown eyes crinkled into the little half smile she had recalled so often with longing in the past week.

She had thought she could be calm when she met him, but the sight of him standing there brought the tears back to her eyes. Instantly he was at her side, and had gathered her into his big arms.

"Why, girl!" He looked down at her reproachfully. "You're crying. What's wrong? What have they done to you?"

"Oh, Jim!" She sobbed in earnest, then, unmindful of the clerk's interested eyes. "I waited for you to call. All night I waited. I thought you were—like the rest. I couldn't bear it, Jim—"

"Easy, girl! Easy . . . " His arms held her close. "You didn't think I'd let you down, did you?" He sounded hurt.

"You didn't call, and I—I've lost my job, and my landlady p-put me out, and I—I'm so hungry, Jim!"

"Hungry! Why, you little goose!" He laughed at that, and in spite of her own tears she smiled at him. It did sound ridiculous, now that she was with him. "I couldn't eat," she told him, half shamed. "I was so upset."

"We'll fix that right away." His arm on hers, he started her toward the hotel dining room. "Seems I'm always feeding you," he joked. "You're the hungriest woman I know . . . Here, we'll sit back here in the corner, and you can tell me all about it over a plate of ham and eggs."

He hadn't received her message until just an hour ago, he told her, gravely. Mrs. Peterman had stuffed it beneath the door and it had been pushed under the edge of the rug. It was only by accident that he noticed it when he did. He had come immediately, laying off work for the day. He scowled and his fists clenched as he listened to her story of yesterday's happenings. He, too, had seen the headlines and the pictures in the papers, and they had angered him.

"It's been rotten having to read the stuff they've been printing about you, knowing half of it wasn't true, and not being able to do anything about it," he burst out. "I could take a punch at every reporter in the lot. I know what they were doing to you! I've seen it before—" He broke off, and Lona had the impression that he was remembering something that had nothing to do with her. He looked so disturbed that she had an absurd impulse to comfort him. For what, she didn't know.

"Don't feel that way about it, Jim." She put a hand out to his across the table. "It couldn't be helped, I guess."

He seemed to come back to himself, then. "People have no right to hound you like that!" he declared. "You've done nothing. I'd like to meet up with your Mr. Sanders again. Calls himself a man—"

"He couldn't help it, Jim, if he feels that way. My landlady, either. What worries me is that I don't know what to do next. It's the thought of hunting another job that bothers me, going places, and having people recognize me. . . . I feel as if I'd like to crawl into a hole somewhere and never come out."

"Poor little girl!" He put his big hand over hers on the table and his sympathy made the tears threaten to well again.

"If you'd have gone back on me, Jim, I'd—I'd have died, I guess," she told him, her eyes hurt.

For a moment he sat there, stroking her hand in silence. Then he got to his feet abruptly, and came to her side of the closed-in restaurant booth. "Listen, girl, there's a way out of this if you want to take it," he brought out. His voice was husky. "You could marry me, if you can stand it."

The suddenness of the thing robbed Lona of words. For a moment she just stared at him. "Jim! You mean—" She broke off, to stare again. "You're asking me—oh, but I couldn't do that! Not just to get out of things. It wouldn't be fair!"

"I love you, girl! You must know that I love you! I'm not much account, I guess, and it wouldn't be much of a life for you, moving around from town to town the way I do. I guess I haven't any right to ask you, but we sort of—belong together, you and me . . . both of us are drifters. Do you think you could maybe, love me enough—" His eyes were pleading.

"Oh, Jim!" she managed to bring out. "Jim, I do love you! How could I help it? You've been so good. But I couldn't—you're just doing this to be kind—"

"Girl, don't! . . . I love you! This is a break for me. Can't you understand?" His arms closed about her there in the semi-seclusion of the booth, and she could feel his heart pounding. She found herself clinging to him, suddenly, straining against the rough surface of his coat that smelled of tobacco. A feeling of safeness enveloped her. She felt she could stay there always.

"Jim, oh, Jim!" she whispered again.

"You'll do it, girl?" He lifted her head with a hand beneath her chin and made her look at him.

"Yes, Jim," she said, then, and tried to hide her eyes in sudden shyness. "If you're sure you want me—"

"Want you? You're funny, girl." He kissed her, then, gently. His lips against hers were hard and strong, as she had known they would be. His kiss felt familiar, somehow, as if it were something that belonged to her, for which she had been waiting.

TUESDAY, MARCH 14, 1939.

Another nice prospect for this year's April is that it arrives on a payday.

Some young fellows would have a better show if they didn't wait for free tickets.

Word comes that some of the new hats for women are being made of wood—and in at least a few instances they can probably be nailed on.

Danger Point In Federal Debt.

WITH pressure being put on congress to increase the federal debt limitation to $50,000,000,000, some concern may be felt over the administration attitude that it will be "necessary" to inflate the national debt to $45,000,000,000 this year—but that people needn't worry as this isn't the danger point.

But even if forty-five billions isn't the "danger point," what is to prevent it going up again next year and the year after that—like a snowball, the bigger it gets the faster it grows? The habit of reckless spending is as difficult to eradicate in a government as in an individual. And just where is the danger point? Would it be reached at $50,000,000,000, $75,000,000,000, or $100,000,000,000? And just what excuse is there for complacently allowing it to reach the danger point?

It's easy to alibi excessive spending. It's much harder to pay bills as they fall due. And the American people, in spite of rapidly increasing taxes, have not yet had a taste of what paying means. We have added and added to the debt, in order to put off the evil day when income must be made to equal outgo. It's an actual fact that if we were at present taxed enough to meet our expenses, our tax load would be as much or more than England's.

Reckless spending has been justified in the name of "emergency." But too many years have now passed to further excuse out and out waste in the name of relief. It's time for straight talk about taxation and government spending.

Why Enforcement Is Difficult.

WITH the large number of liquor and beer licenses scattered around in Mansfield, state liquor agents are entitled to considerable credit for ferreting out a place in which, they aver, liquor and beer were being sold without any sort of license.

Prevalence of 3.2 beer places in business and residential sections of the city, with no restrictions on Sunday selling, has made it difficult for either local police or state agents to do any sort of efficient enforcement job in preventing beer licensees from illegally selling higher-powered beer or bootlegging hard liquor to patrons.

A number of other cities have seen fit to simplify the enforcement problem by passing ordinances banning Sunday sale of 3.2 beer, and these have been upheld by the state supreme court, but Mansfield's city council, by a narrow margin, recently refused to pass such an ordinance, it being contended by Councilman Kyle that regulation of the liquor business "is up to the state."

When Ohio brewers and beer distributors recently pledged co-operation with the state liquor department for housecleaning in the malt beverage industry, they may not have taken into account that the unrestricted spread of beer places into residence districts, and the common practice of using beer licenses to cloak bootlegging activities, has been responsible for some of the rising tide of sentiment against present handling of the liquor traffic in this state.

Obstacles to Barter System.

THERE is more talk about adopting barter to increase foreign trade and get rid of farm surpluses. There are vast accumulations of cotton, wheat and other products to be worked off. The German government has been conducting much of its international trade by this procedure, because it lacked money for direct purchase of needed imports, and is said to be feeling for such an arrangement in this country.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace shows no enthusiasm for such direct dealings with the Hitler regime, and questions the sincerity of German consuls said to be seeking barter arrangements with American farmers in the middle west. Still, he says, that is one of the possibilities being studied, and "anything we can do to increase the purchasing power of foreign countries would help the American farmer."

The trouble has been, in many of the Nazi swapping deals, that while the Germans got what they wanted, the other parties had to take what they could get. As a result, one of the Balkan countries, in return for a lot of grain, is said to have on hand enough aspirin to last it for half a century. Some deals with Latin-American countries seem to have been almost as unsatisfactory.

'Trust Buster's' Troubles.

SAYS the genial but persevering Thurman W. Arnold, satirist of American capitalism and assistant attorney-general at Washington:

"Theodore Roosevelt did his trust-busting with five lawyers and four stenographers. From 1914 to 1923, while mass production and corporate enterprise came of age, there were 18 attorneys. We now have 97 attorneys in the anti-trust division, but they must enforce 30 major acts of congress.

"Today my division has about 200 cases in the hopper and 183 investigations under way. Some of our big projects are the medical, aluminum, Chicago milk, movie and oil cases. We can spare 50 men for this work, and each case takes from eight to ten men. You can see what a jam we are in."

Quite so. And the industries and corporations under fire are in somewhat of a jam, too. The energetic Mr. Arnold's bark, however, often seems worse than his bite. Fortunately he and his staff show more interest in correction of bad business practices than in relentless punishment. In this field the "rule of reason" may prove more effective than indiscriminate club-swinging.

Items telling of Hitler's admiration for American dancing girls gives the idea that a bet may be overlooked in not letting Sally Rand formulate an appeasement policy.

It cannot be avoided that Edgar Bergen's sore throat gives Charley McCarthy a pain in the neck.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — One of the ways to win a war is to lose it, and certain bands of Indians now are cashing in on such a loss.

Some of the best stories surviving from the twirling twenties arose from the division of spoils from sale of Indian oil lands in Oklahoma. Hundreds of Indians found themselves wealthy overnight from oil leases. Earlier they had been driven out of the sunny south of Georgia and Alabama to be deposited on the near desert stretches of sections of Oklahoma.

When oil was hit they cluttered up the highways with rich cars and shiny hearses, and of course there were a few fortune-hunting women eager to marry a befuddled red man to get a nip of his fortune.

Present day divisions are on a lesser scale. Congress and the Indian office took over control of the big money, but even now there are some nice pies to be cut.

Poor Indian!

YEARS ago the Klamath Indians of Oregon were granted a reservation. At the time it was thought they were being dealt a shyster trick, for they were herded into some of the heaviest timber in the northwest. It wasn't worth so much then. Now it is almost priceless.

After the grant was made, the government, by some odd mistake, gave a part of the Klamath reservation to the state for park purposes. The Klamath Indians brought suit and a while back the supreme court upheld their claim against the government for $5,000,000.

Only part of the money will be split up among the 1,400 Indians on the reservation. The balance will be held in the Indian office here for use later in improving the reservation and to help out future generations of Klamaths who might like a share of the kitty. Even so, the cut is likely to be two or three thousand dollars apiece, although the terms of division have not yet been written.

Shoshoni Indians on the Wind River reservation in Wyoming come in for a like piece of change. They were living quietly (more or less) on their reservation in 1878 when the government suddenly decided that California had too many Indians. Several hundred Arapahoes were gathered up and delivered to the Wind River reservation.

It took 60 years to decide it, but the supreme court has upheld the Indian claim for $4,500,000 for the part of their reservation occupied by the Arapahoes. Each of the 1,190 Shoshoni Indians on the Wind River will get $2,350, which is nice money. That also leaves some for future Shoshonis.

Sure of the South.

U. S. military attaches in South America are getting a break. They get spanking new military planes, light bombers and the like, to fly about in for advertising purposes. Their colleagues in European courts have to get along with ordinary commercial planes . . .

Most disappointed in congress at failure to improve Guam was Senator Gibson of Vermont. He liked the place. After he visited it, the islanders named the main road through the park the "Gibson highway." . . . White House people, including the president, call Brig.-Gen. Edwin M. Watson, the president's new secretary, "Pa." The title of "Ma" was hooked on to Captain Paul Bastido, when he was White House naval aide. A year or so ago he was transferred back to navy business . . . Rear Admiral McIntire, the president's physician, and also surgeon general of the navy, is called "Doc" at times—but not to his face.

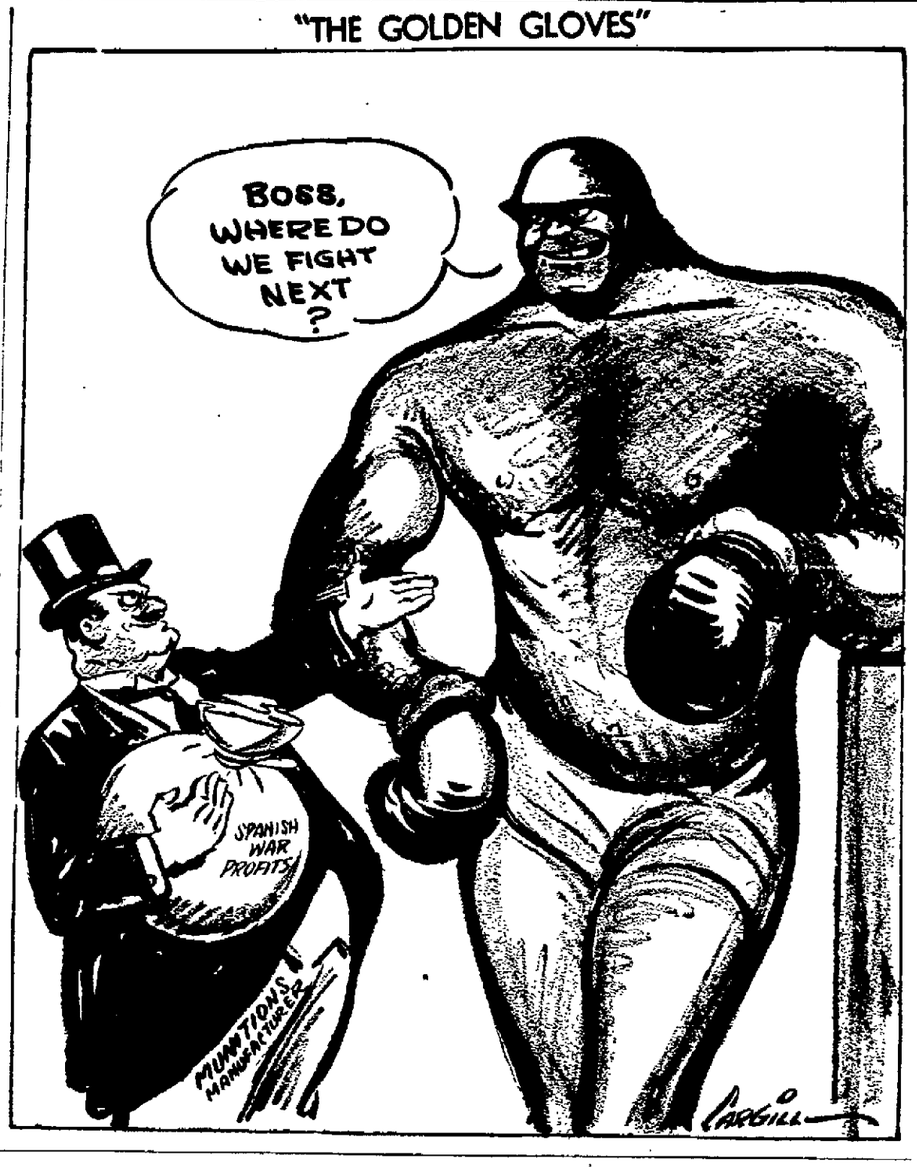
"THE GOLDEN GLOVES"



Meaning of Federal Economy Talk

—By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON—Are you trying to decode the annual spring babble about business and taxes?

Or are you trying to figure out the changing phrases welling up from Washington this year, such as business appeasement and statutory debt limit?

All right, let's throw out those dollar-and-a-half words and bring as much of this thing as we can down to the familiar level of the family budget.

Even though money comes and goes by the billions, governmental finance must face the same old bugaboo that plagues father and the family checkbook—making both ends meet, or trying to.

For instance, the talk of economy is Congress is comparable to the family councils when the bills come in. Senator Pat Harrison's demand for a radical and substantial cut in federal expenditures is much like father laying down the law about living within the family income.

The decision to go ahead with Aunt Julie's operation or to buy the new car on time and let the expenses fall where they must, is something like a New Dealer voting appropriations because of the urgency of relief and other modern innovations.

'That's All There Is!'

THE warning of that section of Congress labeled "economy bloc" against expanding the statutory debt limit beyond the 45-billion-dollar mark has its family budget counterpart, too. See the exasperated parent telling his dependents that the bank won't lend him any more money to meet their current bills—or even if it will, he won't borrow any more on general principles.

And is there no familiar note in President Roosevelt's call in his annual message for an 80-billion-dollar national income? It's possible that argument sounds like mother's chiding reminder! All the old problems would disappear, if father would only get that raise.

How about the business appeasement drive, spearheaded by new dealer Harry Hopkins from the chair of Secretary of Commerce? Well, there's the head of the house who had a disagreement with the banker about loans for improvement of the old homestead. Would the banker please now understand that all was over—no more words about money changers and certainly no further action to suit those words?

Those are the similarities between family and governmental finance. But there are two fundamental differences between the family pocketbook and the United States Treasury.

First:

The ideal home budget makes expenses meet the family income. WITH SOMETHING LAID ASIDE FOR A RAINY DAY. The ideal government budget makes income (tax receipts) meet expenses, AND AVOIDS PUTTING ANY MONEY ASIDE FOR EMERGENCIES.

But most all economists agree that the picture of the federal Treasury laying money aside for a public emergency is cock-eyed in more ways than one. Anything left over should be returned to the people it really belongs to, the taxpayers.

Second:

Each budget expects to use credit to keep it supple, but the usual family budget has a known credit limit, based on a private citizen's past performance and the known ceiling of his income. Contrarily, a public budget has no known ceiling of credit, until that ceiling is actually approached or reached. The federal ceiling is a matter of opinion.

That's the fundamental argument of the moment—the debt ceiling of the federal Treasury.

Should It Be Raised?

YEARS ago, Congress put a theoretical roof on debts at 45 billion dollars, as a sort of warning signal. Investors were assured the federal Government would go no farther than that, or at least there'd be the devil to pay in Congress when that point was reached. Senator Harrison warns that the limit will be reached in the middle of next year if spending continues at the present rate. Secretary Morganthau has asked Congress to raise the ceiling by five billions.

It's Harrison's theory that it's time to call a halt. He warns of economic chaos.

Morganthau apparently sees no such danger, at least in a five-billion dollar ante. If he's working on the general theory of the administration financial experts, the idea would be to boost the national income and let the increased taxes yielded by that income bring the debt down again before it reached a danger zone.

An example: In 1930, the year after peak 1929, income taxes netted Uncle Sam close to two and a half billion dollars. But in 1933, the year after dark 1932, only 700-odd millions trickled in to Uncle Sam from that source, even though the rates were about the same.

That drop, plus heavy pump-priming, doubled the national debt in eight years to around 40 billions—where it now hangs.

Choose your side of the issue: Where is the reasonable limit of Uncle Sam's credit? You're going to hear much more about that in the next year or so.

But before you get in TOO deep, remember that NOBODY actually knows the answer.

Causes of High Blood Pressure.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

INCREASE in blood pressure is considered merely a symptom and not a disease. Sometimes the term "essential high blood pressure" is used to designate cases in which no cause for the high pressure is evident, but this is merely a compromise with our ignorance.

Of all the causes which have been mentioned, change in the kidney is the one most reasonable and easy to prove. It is a common thing for the kidney to contract as age advances, and the shutting off of the kidney blood vessels alone is enough to raise pressure. The process is long, gradual and painless, and need cause no immediate alarm.

Other Factors.

But there are other factors. Research has shown that when there is an interference with the kidney circulation, certain chemicals are formed which, being absorbed, cause the blood vessels all over the body to contract and thus raise blood pressure.

Here we have stated the two possible ways in which blood pressure is raised--one mechanical, the other chemical, by some substance circulating in the body which affects the tension of the circulation.

Among such substances are the secretions of the ductless glands. The automatic nervous system has control over the construction or expansion of the size of the blood vessels and it, in turn, is controlled by the ductless glands.

It is a common finding in enlargement of the thyroid gland that a rise in blood pressure occurs.

Even more intimately associated with blood pressure are two others of the ductless glands—the adrenals. The substance which these glands secrete, adrenalin, will immediately raise blood pressure when injected into the body. If we may assume a condition in which an extra amount of adrenalin is constantly secreted, we have a perfect condition for the production of chronic high blood pressure.

More and more frequently of late, removal of the ardenal glands has been performed to relieve high blood pressure and with considerable degree of success.

The relation of other glands to high blood pressure has often been suggested. When all the glands stop functioning, as in the menopause, there is no question of the effect on blood pressure. Enough of these relationships have been pointed out to make the point that high blood pressure is not a single entity but that a combination of causes may enter into any single case.

Warden Talks To Teachers.

When public schools become more diagnostic, a start will be made on the solution of the crime problem. This is the viewpoint of James A. Johnston, warden of Alcatraz prison, who spoke at the meeting of American Association of School Administrators in Cleveland. Discover tendencies of youth in grade school days and treat them is Warden Johnston's suggestion. He sees an increasing need for child guidance clinics, more psychological testings, and more psychiatric checks.

Listen, World!

Waiting for Something to Happen.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WAITING for something to happen, aren't you? Something wonderful that'll change life all over. Give it a new meaning—fill you with power and passion—banish drabness forever—

Waiting for something to happen? All your life you've been like that, haven't you? Like a little kid, sitting on the edge of a curb, waiting for the circus parade to come crashing around the corner—

No, you don't talk much about it. Used to, when you were younger. Used to dream then, and plan. Plan gorgeously! Splendid rebellions. Shining romance and adventure. And you thought, then, that it might happen any day. But somehow it didn't. Instead life grew steadily drearier.

But still you went right on waiting. No matter how often you failed—no matter how grimly the years closed around you—that same secret thrilling certainty went on and on. Some day, somewhere, something was going to happen to you. Something wonderful.

Not just a lucky break. Bigger than that. A whole new start—the sort of a chance you've always wanted—always felt you were meant to have. That's the real core of it. It isn't just that you want or need a fresh start—you feel you were meant to have it. Life, you're sure, was never intended to be like this. Empty and aimless. Life was planned to to be hot and swift and sweet—filled with high hopes, great hunger. And some day, in spite of everything, things would be like that. When your chance comes—

Waiting for something to happen. Is it childish to feel like that? Are you just kidding yourself? NO, YOU'RE NOT! IT'S TRUE. No matter how old you are, how weary or worried or desperate, life SHOULD have, COULD have, it's great adventure. It IS your right—and it can be had!

Then why has it never come?

BECAUSE YOU'VE ALWAYS LOOKED FOR IT IN THE WRONG PLACE!

You've always looked OUTSIDE for your new deal—like the little lad waiting for the circus to come around the corner. You've always expected that something OUTSIDE YOURSELF was going to hand you your big opportunity—someone you loved or the Boss or Society or Fate. And perhaps you've repeated to yourself that verse which has comforted so many—

"Serene I fold my hands and wait,
"Nor care for wind or tide nor sea;
"I rave no more 'gainst time or fate,
"For lo! My own shall come to me."

Yes, some day YOUR "own" would come to you, too. And so you've waited. But you've been wrong. Your "own" isn't coming to you. You have it already! It lies ready, locked within your own mind and heart, waiting for its release.

Waiting for something to happen—you've never needed to wait a day. You could—you can—start that Something Wonderful happening any second you choose.

FOR THE MAKINGS ARE ALL WITHIN YOURSELF AND HAVE BEEN ALL YOUR LIFE.

Why have you felt so sure that some day you'd have your chance? Because you have always had it right in your own grasp and didn't know it. Why have you felt that life should hold laughter and song, fire and splendid fury? Because it HAS held these things dumbly, darkly, in the depths of your own nature.

Waiting for something to happen? Stop waiting! Let it start happening—NOW. Stop dreaming. Begin living your own realities . . . letting loose the strength and beauty within yourself.

But how? you cry.

By doing or daring anything NEW that will lift you out of the rut, force you into a new trial. That's all you need—a start. The simplest challenge or risk will set you off on that start. And then—? You'll not be waiting anymore. For something Wonderful will be happening TO and THROUGH every corner of your soul.

A Farmer's Diary

Signs of Spring.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

SPRING is almost here. The icy chains that bound the gentle stream are gone now. The frost that penetrated the surface soil is almost all dissolved. It raised heavily the other night, and the next morning, in a haze of translucent fog, I saw living streams of water marking the hollows of the field.

I knew the fog was evidence that the last bits of frozen earth were loosening up, and would soon fill with moisture. I knew the steamlike vapor showed that the ground was colder than the air, and there would be no peace between them until the temperature was equalized. I stood by the sodded field and fencerow, and watched the vapor rise from openings everywhere.

Then came the voices of song sparrows, perched beneath the barn roof eaves, upon the sharp roof's comb, in nearby trees and thickets. I find the jubilant songsters do not wait for dawn, but begin to pipe their lively notes even in the darkest hour before the light begins to break. The black bird tried to change his rasping note to something musical. The grackles flew about the old straw shed, chattering hopefully.

The strong black crows flew down and waddled happily about, in my neighbor's clover meadow. They stretched their wings and scratched the loose earth with their claws and beaks until small bits flew into the air above their backs. The graceful killdee flew overhead, winged zigzag to the stubble field and lit running, noisily calling and lifting the whited inside of his plover wing in my direction. Soon his mate will find a nest among the stubble and four dark, mottled eggs will blend so perfectly with their surroundings that the casual eye will never see them, although it looked directly down upon them.

I heard the meadow larks on every hand. The faint unmistakable beginning of a frog chorus came from the pasture swamp.

And—sweetest note of all—the clear high liquid voice of a wood peewee! I could not believe my ears, for hoping might have brought the sound from memory. Then perched upon a dripping branch of a wild cherry bush I saw him, his slate-colored back and wings, the little tufted crest and the small, swelling throat, breathing forth ecstatic melody.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It may be that those five major playwrights who banded themselves into a private producing unit sometime last year may have the honor of salvaging the theater from a most embarrassing season.

Certainly without them the prospects would not be half as pleasant as they are. For when you consider the current plight of the Guild, the fact that the Mercury is turning more and more to radio, and that the Group doesn't seem to be going anywhere in particular, you begin to appreciate how valuable this new Playwright Producing company may turn out to be.

Remove this unit and what remains? Very little, for, with the exception of its work and of one important importation ("Oscar Wilde"), a couple of musicals ("The Boys From Syracuse"—"Leave It to Me"), and a screwball revue built around the antics of two reformed vaudeville hoofers ("Hellzapoppin") the theater has done very little to justify itself since the season began.

EVEN George S. Kaufmann, that Midas of the midways, seems temporarily to have lost his touch. He helped author an ambitious and pretentious production called "The Fabulous Invalid," which advanced the opinion that some new group always arrived in time to keep the theater from dying. But, ironically enough, the "Invalid" did die, its scenery has been burned, and its memory remains a sad ghost lost amid the shuffle of marching feet.

You probably know that the members of this corporation are Maxwell Anderson, S. N. Behrman, Sidney Howard, Elmer Rice, Robert Sherwood, and John F. Wharton.

Their first production of the year was Mr. Sherwood's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," and it may or may not be significant that it is the most eagerly attended play on Broadway.

The public is also showing marked agility in jumping to the box-office for tickets to Mr. Anderson's "Knickerbocker Holiday," in which the interesting Walter Huston dances around on a peg leg.

It is too early to state precisely what the fate of "American Landscape," the third production, written by Elmer Rice, will be, but the indications are that it will receive the public's blessing.

MR. RICE, you may recall, bitterly denounced the critics some years ago and declared he was through with Broadway forever. But he is back now.

An interesting point about Mr. Sherwood is that he was once fired off an important magazine and one of his co-workers walked out with him saying she would leave too if Sherwood's job was not given back. Her name was Dorothy Parker.

Mr. Anderson, as noted in previous columns, is the lord of High Tor, a fantasy-loving poet, and the hardest man to interview on Broadway.

Sidney Howard, another capable citizen, is famous as an adaptor, and much of his success has come from his ability to dramatize novels into successful plays.

The men who compose the Playwrights Producing company are off to a whale of a start. It will be interesting to see where they go from here.

Roosevelt Message Asks $150,000,000 for U. S. Needy

C. OF C. READY TO RENEW CITY WATER DEMAND

Action on Program to Revamp System to Be Requested at Meeting Tomorrow.

A renewed demand by the Chamber of Commerce for the rehabilitation of the city's water distribution system will be presented to city council at its special meeting tomorrow night, it appeared today.

This was disclosed by Clarence L. VanDerau, president of the chamber, who said he would ask the board of directors at their meeting tonight to consider formal action on renewing their plea to council for city-wide improvements in the water system.

VanDerau said that it was "quite possible" that the board would adopt resolutions requesting action on the matter and that undoubtedly it would be presented to council tomorrow night.

"We have a survey of the needs of the city and it is doing us no good unless it is followed out," he added.

The survey is that made of the water distribution two years ago by consulting engineers and which recommends the expenditure of $650,000 over a period of years to completely revamp the distribution system.

The Chamber of Commerce first advocated improvements in the system three years ago.

Act on Bridge Plan.

The special meeting was called by Mayor Claude M. Hunter for council to give the county commissioners authority to proceed with the construction of a new bridge on Bowman street, to replace the present structure between the Erie and Baltimore and Ohio railroads.

The mayor said that no funds have been appropriated for the proposed span for which the county has requested the city to pay the cost of approaches, sidewalks and paving.

Cost of construction has been estimated at between $10,000 and $11,000, of which the city is expected to contribute approximately $5,000.

Council also will be asked to transfer $1,500 from the sanitary sewer fund to provide funds for the repair of a storm sewer on West Fifth street which collapsed last week.

Jubilant Over Relief From World's Tonic

Constipation Aches, Pains and Stiffness Accompany Its Removal.

Says: "You Can't Go Wrong With World's Tonic."

A lot of the complimentary statements we are showing from local people should have a personal touch for some of you. There should be some of these people who are known to you personally. Perhaps you have heard them complain as shown in our printed statements. If so, and if you are interested, why not go to them now, after they have become users of World's Tonic and ask them directly what they think about World's Tonic. And for a starter, we suggest Mr. George M. Lyons of 1116 Mercer Ave., Akron, Ohio, employed at Goodrich Rubber Co.

"I have suffered for so many years from a chronic state of constipation and had taken so many pills, tablets and all sorts of medicines without getting satisfactory results, that I was almost completely discouraged. The amount of money I spent was a small fortune. At least it was to me. I've only taken a few bottles so far but already I'm willing to say, 'You can't go wrong with World's Tonic.' Why I've seen times when my back was so stiff and sore that I could hardly stand up straight. At other times if I lay down, my knees and legs would stiffen up and I'd have to grab hold of something to pull myself up.

"Then too, I had stomach distresses that were not making my life a bed of roses. Constipation may have caused all these things or may not—I don't care to argue that. All I know is that as soon as my constipation was so nicely relieved by World's Tonic all those aches and pains started leaving. That's all I was interested in and that's why I'm tickled to death because I was lucky enough to hear about it. By all means, put me down as a booster for World's Tonic."

No matter how much money you have spent or how many kinds of medicines you have tried without results, don't give up hope. Consider these honest and grateful expressions of relief from thousands of users, many of them living right here in town as your very neighbors. Talk to some of them. There must be reasons for all the good will this famous medicine, with its roots and herbs and valuable alkalines, is creating daily.

MUSIC CAMPAIGN OFF WITH RUSH

200 Renewals Received First Four Hours—Officials See Goal of 1,000 Sure.

ever, the lists will be thrown open to the public and last year's members who have not renewed will have to take their chances along with new memberships.

If the entire capacity of the High school auditorium is taken by old and new members before the end of the week, as the more optimistic believe it will, those who renew after that will be placed on a waiting list for next year, according to Mrs. Cropper.

The deadline for the membership campaign — and when all checks must be in—is 10 p. m. Saturday. No memberships will be taken after that time, a procedure followed in the past two years.

The entire week has been set aside in a proclamation by Mayor Claude H. Hunter as Civic Music Week. The membership campaign was officially opened last night when more than 160 workers and officers attended the third annual dinner at Park Avenue Baptist church.

Mrs. Mercedes Walker, New York, representative of the Artists Bureau of NBC, who is in Mansfield again this year to assist with the drive, was the principal speaker.

She paid tribute to the officers and workers—205 of them—who give their time and efforts for a project in which civic culture and advancement are the only objectives and personal glory entirely submerged.

Mrs. Walker said there were 300 cities in the United States in the Civic Music movement and explained the system of reciprocity by which a membership in one city permits a member to attend concerts in other cities without additional cost.

"The Civic Music association is operated strictly on a membership basis," she explained, "and when the drive closes, the membership list is closed for another year. Programs are purchased on the basis of the number of memberships—which is a big improvement over the old way of asking influential citizens and business men to make up the deficit at the end of the season. There is no deficit under the Civic Music plan."

The field from which to choose next season's program of artists is practically unlimited, she said, talent depending entirely on the number of memberships and the wishes of the members.

Mrs. Cropper, who also spoke last night, told the group that while 1,000 memberships had been set as the goal this year, there was a possibility that the memberships would far exceed that figure this year. There have been no resignations to date, she explained, except persons moving out of the city.

Rev. David N. Roller, president of the association, who presided at the dinner last night, presented the officers of the organization and called on several persons for brief talks, among them Mayor Hunter, Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, W. L. Miller and Albert Arnold.

Last night's dinner was arranged by Mrs. W. E. Wygant. The tables were arranged with spring flowers, candles and place cards made by Dr. Wygant. The theme song, written to the tune of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" was the work of Mrs. George Vawter.

In his message to Hitler, Tiso expressed the hope that Slovakian independence will rebound to the benefit of European peace.

"The Slovakian people," he said, "today have shaken off an intolerable yoke.

"Slovakia is now an independent nation.

On the heels of Tiso's message came reports from Chrust that Ruthenia had already declared its independence. Ashland County Coroner Dr. George Emery today returned a verdict of a heart attack probably due to exposure in the death of James Gage, 82, whose body was found at the side of the road opposite the Ashland county fairgrounds on U. S. route 42, early Sunday.

Dr. Emery said Gage had been dead for six or eight hours. He was first believed to have been the victim of a hit-skip driver.

Ashland authorities said that they have been unable to locate any relatives of the man who had been living at the fairgrounds since the 1938 Ashland county fair. CHARGE 2 CHILDREN, 2 MULES INVOLVED IN 'WIFE-SWAPPING'

(By Associated Press)

RUSSELLVILLE, Ala. — Officials said two children, two mules and 80 acres, as well as two women, were involved in a "wife-swapping" deal for which four persons today faced bigamy charges.

Five other children were affected by the marital mixup, and while one couple waited in jail the other was separated by the necessity of caring for all seven offspring.

Sheriff D. C. Nix said a Franklin grand jury would act in May on bigamy accusations against Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Odell Brand, neighbors at nearby Red Bay, Ala.

Nix said Johnson married buxom Mrs. Della Brand and Brand married Mrs. Annie Fay Johnson the same day the women, each "about 32," obtained divorce decrees that did not permit re-marriage for 60 days. The men are about 35, the sheriff said.

The four drove together in Johnson's automobile to Fulton, Miss., Nix reported, where the ceremonies were performed Feb. 24.

Police Chief L. A. Jackson of Red Bay said Annie (Johnson) Brand told him she and Brand received 80 acres and two mules from her former husband, Johnson, after the exchange of mates. Johnson and his new wife were to obtain custody of two of the five Brand children.

Johnson and his second wife were in jail, with respective bonds set at $1,500 and $1,000. Brand and his second wife were at liberty under $300 bonds.

Brand was caring for his five children (by the second Mrs. Johnson), Sheriff Nix said, while his new wife was at Johnson's home caring for the two children she bore Johnson.

Hunger Strike of 625 Prisoners at Workhouse Ended

CLEVELAND — (AP) —A combination hunger and sit-down strike among 625 Warrensville workhouse prisoners was over today.

Climaxing a day-long strike for improved fare and free tobacco, 23 accused ringleaders were removed last night to Cleveland's central police station.

Firemen, flanked by policemen and detectives under Municipal Safety Director Eliot Ness, trained ready fire hoses on 116 occupants of one dormitory in which the alleged leaders were quartered. Meanwhile, prisoners occupying a dozen other dormitories were locked in.

Strikers told newsmen they had demanded:

More raisins in their rice pudding; better milk for their cereal; ham and eggs "frequently," and free cigarets in weekly rations.

A crew of prisoner-bakers started the demonstration at 4:30 a. m. when they refused to work. Virtually none of the inmates touched his breakfast. Although idle, time whetted the prisoners' appetites and at noon they ate heartily. At supper, however, they spurned their chile con carne, bread and tea.

Ness was called after the supper hour demonstration. He responded with 38 policemen, 24 firemen and half a dozen detectives.

U. S. PREPARES BROAD QUERIES IN NEW CENSUS

Income of U. S. Workers, Living Conditions, Population Shifts to Be Studied.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The census bureau is laying the basis for the broadest inquiry into personal affairs the nation ever has undertaken.

It is preparing, with the aid of private and governmental experts the questions that will be asked in every home next year in the decennial census.

Out of the answers will come the information on which federal and state governments will base their laws and administrative actions for the next ten years and on which the seats in congress will be reallocated among the states.

Those are the purposes of every census. The by-products from the next census promise, however, to be fully as useful.

Check on Incomes.

In addition to the problems of population, the questions will delve into employment and economic subjects, particularly into incomes of workers, how much they pay for rents, and how they are housed.

Out of the answers to these questions, the economists will piece together analyses that will help to guide not only government but industry, labor and agriculture.

More than ordinary interest is attached to the population shifts of the last ten years. Droughts and poverty have driven many persons away from old homes. Thousands have left cities where there were no jobs in order to try anew on farms.

Surprises may lurk in the population figures. The rate of population increase is getting very low. It amounts now to only a third of 1 per cent a year. The new census may show it to be almost static.

One million fewer children are in schools now than in 1930.

FINED $200 ON DRIVING CHARGE

Autoist Convicted in Muny Court Handed Heaviest Penalty of Year.

The heaviest penalty to be meted out in nearly a year on a driving charge was imposed on a Mansfield motorist in municipal court this morning when Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch fined C. E. Burkholder, 56, of 119 Rowland avenue, $200 for operating his automobile while under the influence of alcohol.

It was the second time that Burkholder had been before the court in the past two years on the same charge. He was convicted today.

Mrs. Goldie Smith, 40, of Mifflin, also arraigned on a similar charge, pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs. Both lost their driving rights for one year.

Patrolmen E. D. Mitchell and Floyd Bowers testified that they arrested Burkholder at 3 a. m. today on Orange street, just west of the Pennsylvania railroad where he had stalled his car.

Mrs. Smith was arrested by State Highway Patrolman W. H. Harrison following an automobile collision on U. S. route 30, four miles east of Mansfield at 9:45 p. m. yesterday.

Harrison testified that when he arrived at the scene of the accident he found Mrs. Smith "staggering all over the road."

He said that H. T. King, driver of the other car told him that his machine had been sideswiped by the Smith car which was in the center of the highway and had only one headlight burning. Neither driver was injured.

TAX SPLURGE

$31,551 Paid in Monday, Best Day Since Collection Began.

County real estate tax receipts yesterday totaled $31,551, the highest amount for any single day since the books opened, and boosted total collections to $226,667, County Treasurer John E. Kolb reported today.

Receipts of both real estate and personal taxes, which are being collected at the same time, have speeded up this week and real estate collections are running well ahead of last year, the treasurer's figures showed.

About 1,000 individuals and business firms had filed personal tax returns today, paying $13,941 in taxes. Returns so far represent one-fifth of the taxable individual and firms in the county.

Payment of real estate taxes to date amount to slightly less than one-third of the total due for the first half of the year, with nearly three weeks remaining in which to pay without penalty.

SNOW IN SIGHT

Forecast Promises Setback For Budding Spring Tomorrow.

Impatient spring is due for another setback Wednesday, according to the weatherman, who predicted today that snow and decidedly colder weather will arrive by tomorrow night.

Although spring is not due officially for another week, the mercury climbed to 50 at noon today. It will be cloudy and warmer tonight, the forecast said, with rain and snow Wednesday.

A heavy frost followed a drop in temperature last night. The low was 27 degrees with yesterday's high 48.

to start. Across the room a somber listener jumped to his feet and demanded that the lecture be stopped.

"I don't think we want to hear this man any longer," the irate protester said. "We don't have to pay him good money to come here and insult us."

A few other protests came from the audience and the perturbed "peer" turned to William Weldon, jr., president of the club, and asked permission to continue.

There was a moment of confusion. Weldon said he thought it was only courtesy to let the speaker go on. But the protests grew louder and more numerous.

Snatching off his fake mustache and pincenez, the masquerading Englishman announced: "I'm the biggest liar you ever saw. I have no English blood in my veins and I've never been in England. I go around the country taking my fellow Americans for a ride."

The protest that touched off the "fireworks" came from P. M. Wooden of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, who was "in" on the act.

"By the way, Mr. Wooden is one of the best actors I've seen, too," Briese commented.

Weldon, the club's president, set the stage for the deception by announcing that Briese was unable to appear and his place would be taken by a visiting English lord.

Officials of the club estimated that the greater part of the members and guests were "taken in" by Briese's disguise.

Likes Jibes at New Deal.

When he criticized the New Deal, the audience enjoyed it. There was laughter when he offered to trade the Duke of Windsor for former President Hoover or President Roosevelt, but there was mostly silence when Briese, in describing the Statue of Liberty, said: "You've got the statue and we've got the liberty."

Urging the trade, Briese said: "It would be a good move, for you're soon going to have a king anyway, and we could furnish you with a perfectly good one with experience."

Briese got a lot of co-operation from officers of the club who "put him wise" when his interpretations of American jokes went sour. He made notes of the explanations he received for a book entitled "Sidelights on the Great American Scene," which he said he planned to write.

Preceding the talk, a program arranged by club members from the Tappan Stove company, was presented. It included numbers by a dance orchestra, a comedy act by Eugene Gump and "hill-billy" numbers by Dale Beal and his daughter, Maxine.

Rev. Peter Young of the First Congregational church gave the invocation. Jay S. Cairns of the Ohio Fuel Gas company arranged the program.

Wives and women guests of club members attended the session which followed a dinner in the hotel ballroom.

APPEAL SAYS RELIEF NEEDS 'VERY SERIOUS'

Previous Funds Insufficient, 1,250,000 Face WPA Job Loss, President Says.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt, describing the relief situation as "very serious," told the lawmaking branch today that responsibility for appropriating sufficient money to carry on WPA until July 1 "rests of necessity" on congress.

While not recommending a specific deficiency figure, the president in a special message asserted recent data furnished him substantiated the "real need" of his previous proposal for an additional appropriation of $150,000,000.

This was the amount cut by congress from his original January request for $875,000,000 to run WPA the last five months of the fiscal year, and which he asked to have restored in a message Feb. 7.

No 'Substantial Change.'

In his message today, Mr. Roosevelt said there had been no "substantial change" in conditions of unemployment since then.

"The government of the United States is faced today with a condition and not a theory," the chief executive declared. "The insufficiency of the money appropriated will compel the administrator to discharge about a million and a quarter actual workers in the immediate future.

"I cannot bring myself to believe that these discharged men and women will contribute to the prosperity of the United States, nor do I believe that the merchants and landlords they are now dealing with will become prosperous when their trade ceases.

"Therefore, the responsibility for the situation in which all of these people will find themselves during the coming three months rests of necessity within the decision of the congress of the United States."

The president said it was "wholly within the right of any and all of us to study and work for the greater efficiency of government" and that additional studies were proper. He declared, however, that the government was faced at the moment with a condition, not an abstraction.

He also said there had been allegations that he would be satisfied if no further appropriation were made for the coming three months.

"I feel that in justice to myself," the president said, "I must make it clear that I am not sending this message to the congress merely for the purpose of going through motions."

"For more than six years it has been the definite policy of the president and the congress that needy persons, out of work, should not be allowed to starve; and it was an obligation of the federal government to give work to those able to work and an obligation of state and local government and of private charities to take care of those needy persons who are unable to work.

"That policy, I am more than ever confident, is right. It should not be abandoned now."

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

SLOVAKIA GOES INDEPENDENT AS CZECHS SUBMIT

Two Nations Separate Under Hitler's Threat; Czech Cabinet Resigns.

2. That Bohemia-Moravia form a customs and monetary union with Germany.

3. Complete disarmament of Czecho-Slovak military forces.

4. Introduction of Germany's Nuernberg racial (anti-Jewish) laws.

Collapse of the federal union through the Slovak declaration of independence at Bratislava was first announced to this Czech capital at 3 p. m.

Czechs were unprepared for the magniture of the shock, but they received the news calmly and with resignation.

Anxiety quickly spread among Jewish inhabitants and German emigres whose first thoughts were to flee if possible. (There are about 21,000 Jewis in Bohemia-Moravia.)

Hundreds of persons rushed to foreign consulates seeking visas.

Ousted Tiso New Premier.

The Slovak declaration of independence was voted in a tense secret session of parliament called after Slovak leaders conferred with Hitler in Berlin. Joseph Tiso, ousted last week by the Prague government, was named premier of the new state.

The official Hungarian news agency said Hungarian forces had taken the town of Podhering while private advices said Hungarian troops had advanced 20 miles into dwindling Czechoslovakia.

Prague feared the Carpatho-Ukraine district, probably too weak to establish independence, would be absorbed by Hungary to realize a Polish-Hungarian dream for a common frontier.

The war-born republic thus would be reduced from the 52,244 square miles united as a nation by the World war treaties to approximately 18,158 square miles.

The Czechoslovak government headed by Premier Rudolf Beran resigned in the face of the Slovak crisis while rumors spread in Prague that Germany intended to occupy several Czech cities.

A Berlin spokesman said Nazi Germany considered the Czechoslovak situation "unbearable" and that Hitler was determined to force a solution within 24 hours.

Britain and France, which helped draw up the Munich agreement of Sept. 29, for Czechoslovakia's first dismemberment, maintained official silence at the further collapse of the republic under German pressure.

Informed London sources indicated Prime Minister Chamberlain would take no part in central Europe's new crisis even if Nazi troops move.

The press of both France and Britain were virtually unanimous in calling it "none of our business." The pro-government Times of London said Britain was not obligated by the Munich accord to guarantee the republic's frontier because Italy and Germany were not standing behind their guarantees.

Poland Sees Hungary Take Carpatho-Ukraine.

WARSAW, Poland —(U.P.)— The "absorption" of Carpatho-Ukraine, easternmost state of Czechoslovakia, by Hungary is now inevitable, authoritative Polish circles asserted today after the declaration of Slovakian independence.

At the same time, it was said officially that Poland has no territorial or other claims in Czechoslovakia or Carpatho-Ukraine since the annexation of the Teschen area after the Munich conference.

There is no possibility that Polish troops will occupy Czechoslovak territory, the official announcement said. (Reports said Polish troops on the Czech frontier had been strongly reinforced.)

important part in Japan's war of aggression in China because this country buys more products from Japan than all other nations put together," Dr. Park said.

"The United States holds the key to the financing of the far-eastern conflict and it is only through Japan's marketing with this nation that she is able to continue her invasion in China."

"But a continuation of the present United States policy will only tend to make the situation worse," he said.

Says Japan Nearly Broke.

The speaker declared that the Japanese have no more gold, that their supply is exhausted because they have poured it into bombing planes, warships and arms—"and now they have only what they can seize from bleeding China."

"The time has come for your people to open your eyes and give some study to the situation," he declared.

Dr. Park said that if China wins the war it will strengthen the democracies of the world and that independent China would serve as a bulwark against Russian Communism one side and Japanese imperialism on the other.

He contends that Japan, now dependent upon United States trade, if successful in conquering China, would then exploit the natural resources of China in building a huge army and navy that would blot out the democracies of the world.

"The United States is flooded with Japanese goods—but wait until she conquers China and has natural resources of her own. Then the foundation of civilization will be rocked," Dr. Park declared.

"Goods produced at low labor costs won't be able to be kept off your shores and as the result the American standard of living will be forced down."

He predicted, as did Dr. Ernst Fraenkel, a German refugee in a talk here last Friday, that the dictator nations would choose war rather than let their regimes fall in a revolution that is sure to come because the huge re-armament programs are bankrupting these powers.

He scoffed at the idea of the fortification of Guam by the United States terming it a "waste of beautiful American dollars."

"We hear talk that Japan will attack United States. This is not true. As long as China is to the west of Japan, that nation will never desert its shores to declare war in the east."

EMPIRE REPORT PUTS DEFICIT AT $423,978 IN '38

Hill Says Recession and Drop in Finished Steel Prices Hampered Operation.

The Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company showed an operating deficit of $423,978.92 in 1938, the company's annual report to its shareholders disclosed today.

The report, submitted by James M. Hill, president of the company, said net sales during the year were $2,698,898.40 as compared with $8,213,191.15 in 1937 and $6,896,073.68 in 1936.

Hill pointed out that the decreased volume reflected the general recession which he said began in October 1937, and continued "without interruption" throughout 1938 until the fourth quarter.

He added that the sharp drop in retail price of finished steel products during the year had contributed to the company's failure to conduct a profitable operation.

Upturn In Last Quarter.

Hill reported operations were at an average rate of 32.2 per cent in 1938, although there was a sharp upturn in the fourth quarter, averaging 53.7 per cent.

In 1937 operations were at an average rate of 71.3 per cent.

Hill reported that before allowances for interest and depreciation, the company's 1938 deficit was $157,480. In 1937, before interest and depreciation allowances, the company made a profit of $243,415.

A depreciation reserve of $183,312 was set up in 1938, and $153,950 was set aside for maintenance of property and equipment, the report showed.

Hill also pointed out in the report that the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue had examined the company's income tax returns for three years ending Dec. 31, 1936 and has indicated a deficiency in taxes for those years of approximately $122,500 plus the interest.

He said the company had filed a protest, but had not yet been advised by the government what further action will be taken.

Illness, Damaged Roads Keep Two Schools Closed

A combination of flooded roads and influenza kept the Union high school in Weller township and the Olivesburg grade school closed today.

The schools, closed yesterday after flood waters prevented school buses from using a number of secondary roads along the Blackfork creek, probably will be re-opened Wednesday, Supt. V. B. Moffett said.

Moffett said about 20 of the 190 pupils in the two schools had been absent because of illness and for that reason he considered it advisable to extend the forced vacation to Wednesday, at least.

In the Mansfield schools today the number of absent pupils dropped to 585, slightly above the usual figure, and Supt. W. L. Miller said the peak of absence due to colds and grippe apparently had passed. There were 844 pupils absent last Friday.

The largest percentage of absentees today was in the Bowman school where 119 of the approximately 800 pupils were out of school. Senior high, with 1,300 pupils, reported 107 absent. The Carpenter school was least affected, with only 17 pupils out.

CITY'S OLDEST STORE EXPANDS

Scattergoods, Founded Before Civil War, Enlarges Quarters.

Mansfield's oldest retail store, founded five years before the outbreak of the Civil war, has just completed an extensive expansion program.

Scattergood and Son, Inc., which has operated at the corner of Walnut and West Third for the past two years, has taken over the entire second floor of the Dickson building, which runs from Walnut to Main street. The store already occupied the first floor and basement of the Walnut and Third street section of the building.

The store was founded in 1856 by A. Scattergood in a building on North Main which is now a part of the location of the new Kresge building. Later the company was expanded to include the late Hobart Scattergood, son of the founder, who operated the store until his death about three years ago.

It remained in its original location until two years ago when it was moved to its present location. The store is now operated and managed by W. O. Loomis and Fred Heineking, veterans of the old company.

The expansion will permit the addition of a number of new lines of merchandise as well as increasing certain lines, such as rugs, draperies, carpets, curtains, dress goods and lingerie.

HUNGARIANS IN FRONTIER DRIVE

Send Ultimatum to Prague Demanding Evacuation of Carpatho-Ukraine.

tion was demanded within 24 hours, the ultimatum gave the Prague government only 12 hours to fulfill the other conditions. The ultimatum was timed 3 p. m.

Hungarian detachments were said by the Hungarian news agency to have taken Podhering, south of Munkacs, and captured a Czech detachment, which it blamed for starting the fighting between Hungarian and Czech troops. Early today, the agency said, Czech border forces began unexpectedly to fire across the frontier near Munkacs. Afterward Hungarian soldiers returned the fire, the agency dispatches said, and then crossed the frontier.

The Hungarian news agency announced Hungary's army also had been increased but figures beyond the mention of "only a few thousand" were not given.

Nazi Shadow Grows.

Behind the emergence of Slovakia as a virtual German puppet state, Hungary today saw the shadow of the Nazi giant growing darker over her own land.

The creation of a new Slovakia as the latest move in Reichfuehrer Hitler's push to bring all central and eastern Europe under control was foreseen frankly by Hungarian leaders.

"Hungary may well be next," they said.

A Nazi-supported Slovakia was seen as ending the cherished Polish-Hungarian dream of a common frontier where now lies Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia), easternmost part of Czechoslovakia.

Hungarian leaders said Hitler now had complete control of "what now had the Czecho-Slovak republic"—a corridor to the geographical Ukraine constituted by parts of Poland, Soviet Russia, Rumania and Carpatho-Ukraine.

DRIVER FREED

Man Held in Traffic Death Exonerated by Lutz.

Ralph W. Gilbert, 22-year-old manager of the Shady Lawn farms at Chesterland, Geauga county, driver of the machine which early yesterday struck and killed Claude C. Steele, 50, of 330 Lexington avenue, today had been exonerated of all blame in connection with the accident.

Assistant County Prosecutor Harold T. Lutz, ordered Gilbert's release from jail after he had completed his investigation and questioning of witnesses.

Lutz, termed the accident in which Steele was struck as he walked in the street, "unavoidable." He said that the driver of another car which Gilbert attempted to pass when he struck Steele said the youth was operating his machine at a moderate speed and apparently was unable to stop on the icy pavement.

Funeral services for Steele will be held at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Finefrock Funeral home with Rev. E. G. Corwin, pastor of the First Methodist church officiating. Burial will be in Shiloh cemetery.
